Senate Group Reports Out Revised D. C. Sales-Tax Bill

Higher Cigarette, Beer, Liquor Levies, Restaurant, Drug Exemptions Adopted

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate District Committee late yesterday voted 7 to 4 to send an amended 2-per-cent District sales-tax bill to the Senate floor, including a straight penny-a-pack cigarette tax.

Amendments approved by the committee made four major changes in the sales-tax plan which cleared the House last week.

1. A one-cent tax on each pack of cigarettes. The House-approved bill called for applying the sales tax to cigarettes; it would have amounted to a penny on a single pack of cigarettes; the difference is that the tax on a carton of cigarettes would be 10 cents under the Senate committee plan, and 3 cents under the House plan.

2. The committee voted to exempt from the sales tax all restaurant meals costing $1.50 or less. The House bill called for applying the sales tax to restaurant meals. Both versions exempt food for home consumption.

3. A 50-per-cent increase in liquor gallonage taxes, and a boost from the present 50 cents to $1 in the tax on each barrel of beer, was added by the Senate committee to the 50-per-cent increase in liquor license fees approved by the House.

4. An exemption from the sales tax for all medicines, drugs and pharmaceuticals was approved by the committee. The House had votes to exempt only those sold on prescription.

Same Revenue Expected

Despite the changes, revenue expected from the committee version is about the same as from the House bill, District officials said. Both would produce about 18 million dollars.

Voting for the revised bill were Committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kan.), Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) and Karl E. Mundt (R., S. D.).

Voting against it were Senators Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), J. Allen Frear, Jr. (D., Del.), and Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.).

A question was raised later about whether the committee intended to increase the beer tax by 50 per cent or by 50 cents. (A 50-per-cent increase would be 25 cents over the present tax of 50 cents a barrel). Both Senator McGrath

Hope Diamond Other McLean Jewelry Sold

The famous jewel collection of the late Evalyn Walsh McLean, including the Hope Diamond, has been sold to Harry Winston, New York diamond merchant, for more than $1,250,000, it was disclosed last night.

The jewels had been in the possession of executors of Mrs. McLean's estate. According to Winston, the sale was completed yesterday after he outbid 40 other jewel merchants.

Winston, who said the jewels would be delivered to him today, declared he was not worried about taking possession of the 44½-karat Hope diamond with its legend of tragedy.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I feel particularly happy."

(A superstition surrounding the diamond held that its owner would suffer bad luck. The gem was once owned by Catherine the Great of Russia and Marie Antoinnette, beheaded in the French Revolution. Mrs. McLean's husband died in a mental institution, her eldest son was killed in an auto accident and her daughter died of an overdose of sleeping tablets.)

The jewel will be put on display throughout the country in museums and at leading jewelers', Winston said. He added he had no plans for its immediate sale.

The collection also includes the 92½ karat "Star of the East," once owned by a sultan of Turkey, and 72 other pieces.

In her will, Mrs. McLean requested that, if possible, the jewels be held for about 20 years after her death, but a court decided it would be in the best interests of her estate to sell the collection at this time.

Among disappointed gem merchants who had sought to purchase the collection was Jack M. Werts, Dayton, Ohio, who arrived here several days ago to dicker with Thurman Arnold, executor of the estate, who was responsible for the first news of the sale.

'Continuous Meeting' Of Pressmen Halts Papers' Publication

Pressmen on four Washington newspapers called a continuous meeting last night.

As a result, The Washington Post and the morning Times-Herald did not publish.

Whether early editions of afternoon newspapers would appear on schedule today was in doubt.

The pressmen, affiliated with the AFL International Printing Pressmen's Union, called the "continuous session" at 6 o'clock last night in Odd Fellows Hall, 419 Seventh st. nw., and "recessed" at 10:10 p.m. until 10 a.m. today.

George Walker, president of Pressmen's Local No. 6—which includes about 100 pressmen of Washington's four daily newspapers—announced after the "recess" that "It's safe to say there won't be any papers on the streets tomorrow (Wednesday)."

Walker said that the "continuous session" was called because of a stalemate in collective bargaining negotiations with the four newspapers over a 1949 work contract. He told a reporter—according to Associated Press— that "nearly every issue" is in dispute.

The union leader said that the "continuous session" would be resumed at 10 a. m. this morning, indicating the press crews would not report for publication of the Star, News and afternoon editions of the Times-Herald.

Spokesmen for the publishers expressed surprise that the work stoppage had been called by the pressmen, inasmuch as a conference between representatives of the union local and publishers had been scheduled for today, with the international officers of the union setting in.

Contract Expired Feb. 7

The 1948 contract between the publishers and the pressmen ran out February 7. Negotiations for a 1949 contract were begun January 28, and nine negotiations meetings were held, the last on March 30.

At that time, union representatives gave the publishers verbal notice that the union would not be responsible for its members' reporting to work after 4 p. m. Saturday, April 9, according to publishers' spokesmen.

The pressmen's local had submitted a list of demand which included the following: Journeymen getting $15.82 on the day shift be raised to $20 a day. Those getting $16.57 on the night shift, be raised to $22 a night. Also, pressmen be given three weeks' vacation, instead of the two weeks now granted.

The publishers offered to raise the pay of journeymen by $5 a week, ($1 a day), and give them three weeks vacation in 1949; or raise the pay by $6 a week ($1.20 a day) and give them three weeks vacation in 1950.

Other pressmen demands included requests for reduction in the work day from the present 7½ hours to 6½ hours, addition of one more journeyman to each basic press crew; $25-a-week pensions at age 55 after 15 years of service at the same plant; and severance pay ranging from 12 to 20 weeks.

Boysen's Offer Refused

A Federal mediator had been in touch with the negotiations.

Walker, the union local president, told a reporter last night that Charles C. Boysen, business manager of The Washington Post, had offered to sit down and talk business with the union negotiators at once if the press crews would return to work.

"We told him (Boysen) we'd remain in continuous session,' Walker said.

Louis A. Lopez, general representative of the international union in Washington, said the "continuous session" had not been sanctioned by the international union and also that no strike had been authorized."

The pressmen are the crews who operate the high-speed, giant presses in the final stage of newspaper production.

Other employes of the two morning newspapers went ahead with their regular tasks, editing copy, setting type and molding pages, prepared to resume publication on a moment's notice.

Unprecedented in Post's History

Today was the first time in its 71-year history that The Washington Post lost a day's publication.

On Sunday, December 20, 1943, members of the International Typographical Union called a continuous meeting. The two morning papers, The Post and Times-Herald, managed to publish curtailed editions for Monday with printers who were on duty when the continuous meeting was called. The afternoon papers failed to publish altogether on Monday.

Regular publication of all Washington newspapers was resumed on Tuesday on orders of the National War Labor Board, which called a special public hearing on the work stoppage.

Senate Group Approves D. C. Home Rule Bill

Enlarged Federal Payment to City Among Its Terms

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

A Washington home rule bill, calling for an enlarged Federal payment to the city, last night was overwhelmingly approved by the Senate District Committee.

The measure went to the Senate floor with only one dissenting vote of committee members present.

The approved bill wiped out the criticized "one House veto" provision and provided that city council actions could only be disapproved by concurrent resolution of both branches of Congress or by the President.

The new fiscal formula, submitted by Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), provides that the Federal Government will pay 20 cents for each dollar collected by the District in tax revenues.

Based on 1950 revenue estimates of 96 million dollars, the proposed formula would call for a 19 million dollar Federal payment—7 million dollars above the present contribution.

More School Funds

A last minute amendment to the formula provided that "all revenues produced by the city's tax program and the Federal payment in excess of the city's approved operating budget in any given year would be earmarked solely for "construction or reconstruction of public school buildings."

Before reporting the bill, the full committee also adopted an amendment by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) to raise the salary of the chairman of the city council or "mayor" from $5000 to $7500, plus $3000 for expenses.

Another major committee action yesterday reduced the 60-day congressional review period to 45 days. If a council legislative proposal is not vetoed by passage of a concurrent resolution of both branches of Congress within this period, it would become law. The President would continue to have a 10-day review period.

Borrowing Provisions

The full committee accepted several other revisions suggested by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) to the Kefauver Home Rule Subcommittee last week. They include:

1. Enlarging the nine-member elected city council to 11 with the two additional members appointed by the President, to "protect the Federal interest here."

2. Incorporating several city borrowing provisions of the Auchincloss bill, including (a) amortization of all bond issues within the life usefulness of the project, (b) 30-year limitation on all bond issues, (c) redemption of bonds in consecutive annual installments, and (d) sale of bonds at public auction under sealed bids.

3. Presidential appointment to vacancies occurring on the city

'Real Inventory Problem'

Glut of Unsold New Houses Declared Money Market Drag

New York, April 5 (AP).—Thousands of currently unsold new houses must be disposed of before there is much easing in the money market for new construction, a Washington, D. C., banker said today.

Warren R. Forster, vice president of the Hamilton National Bank, told the Eastern mortgage clinic of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America the backlog of unsold properties was "a real inventory problem for the building and mortgage banking industries—and in some cases for the commercial banking industry."

He added: "Some digestion must take place before the patient is ready for another hearty meal."

The mortgage lender's problem of making sure that the property he is financing is salable in a competitive market will not be a simple one, Forster said, "until production per dollar of expense reaches a point at which a livable home can be produced for under $10,000 and, at least in our own section, until the present backlog of unsold homes has largely moved out."

Discussing whether a housing shortage exists, Forster said: "If we are to accept the philosophy that every one who wants a house is entitled to one, regardless of his ability either to pay for it or to carry it, there is doubtless a shortage. If we adhere to the more traditional approach that the right to a home must be earned, then I seriously question the extent of the shortage. I do know that if the first viewpoint is accepted, then the shortage will never be made good by private industry or private finance."

The two-day mortgage clinic ended with today's session.

65 Are Dead Or Missing in Hospital Fire

12 Newborn Babies Perish; 20 of 44 Bodies Taken From Debris Identified

Effingham, Ill., April 5 (AP) The estimated toll of dead and missing rose to 65 today in a horrifying midnight fire that roared at high speed through St. Anthony's Hospital.

The hospital registrar made the estimate. Earlier estimates by reporters and the Red Cross ranged from 47 to 54, and Mayor H. B. Rinehart expressed fear the death list would reach 60.

A dozen newborn babies perished in the holocaust.

One expectant mother escaped through a window—although in labor—and safely gave birth to a son.

The fire burst out of a clothes chute shortly before midnight last night. It leaped fiercely through wooden-floored halls and quickly engulfed the more than a hundred patients.

124 Believed in Building

The registrar, Miss Helen Wiseman, said 20 identified and 24 unidentified bodies were removed from the debris and 21 were still missing tonight. Records were lost, but she said the hospital believed 124 patients and staff members were in the building when it caught fire.

The blaze was the Nation's second most tragic hospital fire. The most disastrous was one that killed 124 persons in the Cleveland, Ohio, clinic hospital of Dr. George W. Crile on May 15, 1929.

Some patients, including expectant mothers, leaped from fiery windows. Bedfast patients shrieked in agony as the fierce flames turned the haven of mercy into a raging inferno.

Heroic nuns and nurses braved sheets of flame in attempts to save the sick. Several perished with their charges. One was a nurse, Miss Fern Riley, 23. She died trying to rescue the babies.

The hospital's chaplain, the Rev. Charles C. Sandon, 50, died in a room next to the chapel.

In the hospital's nursery, firemen found the charred bodies of eight new-born infants, still in their flame-blackened metal cribs.

Helps Dozen to Escape

Ben Biedenher, 66, a male nurse, suffered severe burns in helping a dozen patients to safety. He said he tried in vain to lead others out —"but I couldn't, the place was a whole bath of flame."

Fire Chief Frank Wilkins said the fire started in the basement, then shot up the laundry chute and elevator shafts. He said the cause is not known.

In Springfield, Governor Alai E. Stevenson ordered the State Fire Marshal to reexamine all Illinois hospitals. The marshall said St. Anthony's complied in 1942 with certain fire safety changes his office had recommended in 1940.

The fire swept through the hospital within an hour after the alarm. By the time residents of the south central Illinois city of 8000 arrived with firemen, huge puffs of flame and smoke were shooting from the top floors and from the front entrance.

One Baby Dies

Two expectant mothers, Mrs. Arnold Aderman, 24, and Mrs. Winston Sidner, 22, survived. Mrs. Aderman escaped down a ladder and Mrs. Sidner leaped from the second floor. She suffered a broken leg.

Their babies were delivered later. Mrs. Sidner's child died shortly after birth. A physician

Forrestal Is Flown Here, 'Seriously Ill'

Ex-Defense Chief In Naval Hospital For 'Medical Study'

James V. Forrestal, former Defense Secretary, has been admitted to Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md. for "medical study and physical check-up," it was officially announced yesterday.

Nature of his condition was not disclosed but a high-ranking Pentagon authority said Forrestal was "very seriously ill."

Other informed sources, asked if the recently resigned Secretary had suffered a nervous breakdown, said "nervous exhaustion" was a better description.

Flown From Florida

Forrestal, 57, was admitted to the hospital as an ambulatory patient last Saturday after being flown in a Navy plane from Florida to the Anacostia Naval Air Station here, according to Rear Admiral H. L. Pugh, Navy deputy surgeon general.. He was taken from the airfield to the hospital in an automobile.

At 2:30 p. m. yesterday, in response to numerous inquiries, Capt. B. W. Hogan, acting medical officer in command of Naval Hospital, issued this brief bulletin:

"Mr. Forrestal, former Secretary o National Defense, was admitted to the Naval Hospital, National Naval Medical Center, for medical study and physical check-up."

Conflicting Reports

The hospital chief declined to elaborate, despite many and conflicting reports about the patient's condition and the nature of his illness.

Forrestal, first U. S. Secretary of Defense, stepped out of public service on March 31, as he had requested in his resignation to President Truman, announced March 13. Reason given for his resignation was "urgent personal considerations," which friends interpreted simply as "tired and wants to quit."

Last Wednesday, intimates explained, he flew to Hobe Sound, Fla., two days following ceremonies at which his successor.

U. N. Pledged Full Support By Acheson

New York, April 5 (AP).—Secretray of State Acheson promised full American support to the United Nations today at the opening of the third spring session of the U. N. Assembly.

Acheson came to Flushing Meadows to pledge that the United States and other North Atlantic Treaty signers are solidly behind the U.N. The nine other U.N. foreign ministers who signed the pact yesterday were present.

Miss Margaret Truman, the President's daughter, also attended.

U.N. Best Hope

Acheson issued a statement to newsmen saying he believes it is the conviction of the American people that the "United Nations is our best hope of building a peaceful world community."

Before the meeting, Acheson shook hands with Andrei A. Gromyko, No. 1 deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union, and a veteran U.N. delegate.

Gromyko had nothing to say at the opening session, but reports persisted that Russia shortly would attack formally the North Atlantic Pact.

At the outset, Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt, Assembly president, lectured the five great powers on the need for cooperation among them.

Evatt Urges Unity

In a 15-minute speech, he said present world difficulties were not caused by the U. N. but by big power disagreement. He said he joined President Truman in a call for "unfaltering support" for the United Nations.

The Assembly met to finish business left over from the three-month session in Paris last fall, and to take up new business. Chief items on the unfinished calendar include what to do with Italy's prewar colonies, Franco Spain, and the complaint of India against treatment of Indians in South Africa.

ECA Extension Bogged Again In Senate Talk

'All Night' Session Recessed on Pleas of Weary Members

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate after a brief votin sprint last night bogged dow again in a threatened "all night attempt to pass the three-day overdue ECA program extension.

The "all night" session actual recessed at 10:05 p. m. when Se ate leaders yielded to pleas o weary Senators to call it off.

Embittered by the stalemate Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D Ill.) told newsmen that "apparent ly some leaders on the othe (GOP) side don't want Congress to get anything done."

"It Passeth Understanding"

Asked if he was charging an organized slowdown, Lucas said:

"I am making no charges, but it passeth understanding that the Senate should spend so much time on a bill and consider so many extraneous matters."

Renewing earlier "extra session" warnings, he said he is now practically convinced Congress can not finish its work by July 31.

Fails to Limit Debate

Lucas vainly tried to get the Senate to agree to limit debate on remaining amendments. Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) objected.

Lucas promptly warned the Senate to prepare to stay at least until midnight and possibly all night.

Langer retaliated by opening a desk-pounding attack on American policy in Germany and talked until the Senate recessed. He sent to the desk an amendment designed to bar dismantling of any more German industrial plants.

Only 24 hours earlier Lucas put the Senate on notice that Congress may have to meet all summer to complete action on Administration measures unless it hustles.

Authority for the initial ECA program technically expired Saturday midnight. Shipments to Europe are continuing, but no new orders can be placed until the House, as well as the Senate, has approved the $5,580,000,000, 15-

Pound Destroys Thousands

Doctors Ask D. C. for 525 Dogs A Year for Use in Research

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Fourteen medical leaders yesterday asked the District Commissioners to make available for medical research about 525 of the 5909 dogs destroyed each year at the District Pound.

The Committee for Health and Research told the Commissioners that in the past fiscal year the dogs were destroyed at a time when medical schools and research groups were seriously handicapped in their work for lack of live animals.

The committee chairman, Dr. Charles F. Morgan of Georgetown University Medical School, commented that 26 major cities and several States have adopted legislation permitting use of unclaimed animals for medical needs.

Dr. Morgan urged the Commissioners to support a bill to be introduced shortly in Congress removing the "absolute discretionary power" of Poundmaster Frank B Marks to determine whether the animals are to be sold or destroyed giving medical institutions a right to dogs unclaimed after five days.

Marks, who is a vigorous opponent of vivisection of animals, said he killed only sick or injured dogs and managed to sell all healthy ones. When questioned about his qualifications for determining the health of the dogs, Marks said he had no veterinary training, but had 50 years experience raising animals.

"I can tell as much about the health of dogs as any doctor," he declared.

The case for enactment of a change in the 1878 pound law was emphasized by Dr. Norman H. Topping, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service and associate director, National Institute of Health.

Dr. Topping predicted that within "the next few years, Washington will become the medical center of the world." He said the area already has three medical schools as well as a Navy Medical Center, the Walter Reed Medical Center and the National Institute of Health, "which "is now in the process of building one of the biggest research centers in the world."

It is, therefore, "incumbent that laws be enacted which make it possible for these people to have

Europe Arms Aid Is Vital Pact Sequel, Bradley Says

Staff Chief Fires Gun in Expected Fight on Power To Back Up Treaty

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

General Omar Bradley last night urged congressional approval of military aid to western Europe as "an essential sequel" to the North Atlantic Pact.

The Army Chief of Staff's declaration—in a speech in New York City—served as the opening gun in an expected heated battle to back up the new security treaty with arms shipments.

"Policy without power is like law without enforcement," said Bradley of proposals that we ratify the pact but disapprove or postpone military aid.

Rejects Wide Belief

He flatly rejected the widely held belief that Western Europe cannot be defended against Russia and must count on American bombers and "later liberation" in the event of war.

"As long as the helplessness of Western Europe would invite military aggression," said Bradley, "its increasing prosperity shall grow more tempting to the armies from the East.

"Not until we share our strength on a common defensive front can we hope to replace this temptation with a real deterrent to war . . .

"I know of no other expenditure that can produce greater security at a more reasonable cost than investment in a timely defense of the borders of Western Europe."

Addresses Jewish Veterans

General Bradley's address—before the Jewish War Veterans of New York—took on the aspect of a major Government declaration, since he stated that he spoke on "invitation from the State Department to comment publicly on the military security significance of the North Atlantic Pact and its implementation."

He added that "as a soldier, I reluctantly participate in discussion of a proposed treaty prior to its debate in the United States Senate. I have no desire to invade civilian responsibility for the conduct of foreign affairs."

Thereafter, however, Bradley pulled no punches in giving his views on the pact, the arms pro-

Douglas Has Operation on Eye Hurt by Fishhook

Southampton, England, April 5 (U.P.).—American Ambassador Lewis Douglas underwent a delicate eye operation here yesterday after a fish hook pierced his left eye. Mrs. Douglas said today the extent of the injury is not yet known.

Douglas

There is danger Douglas may lose the sight of the eye, but doctors could not tell yet. Officials at Southampton Eye Hospital said his condition is as "good as can be expected."

The 54-year-old diplomat, an avid fisherman, was casting for trout in the swift, rocky River Test, near Stockbridge, Hampshire, and let his line fly in an arc. A sudden gust of wind hurled the hook back, sending the barbed point into the eyeball.

Friends from the Haughton Fishing Club put him in an automobile and rushed him to the hospital here. The hook remained caught in the eye and he was in tremendous pain.

Douglas arrived in Britain only recently from a vacation in the United States. Shortly after his return he suffered a severe and prolonged case of hiccups.

Man Killed, Woman Rescued in 2 Fires

A man died and an invalid woman was rescued in two fires yesterday afternoon.

Uriel C. Hayes, 40, of 3209 22d st. ne., was pronounced dead after a fire rescue squad administered oxygen for more than an hour.

His burned body was found in the bathroom of his home by firemen summoned by a neighbor who saw smoke pouring from a window.

Fireman said the blaze was confined to a bed. They said Hayes probably had fallen asleep while smoking and collapsed trying to escape.

Miss Anna Forsberg, 53-year-old invalid, was carried down the rear porch steps from her second floor apartment at 1753 Columbia rd nw., after a fire that broke out in the basement swept upstairs to the first floor corridor.

She was assisted by an unidentified man who entered her smoke filled apartment and by Pvt. T. F Anthony of 21 Engine Company

Two alarms were sounded. Traffic along Columbia rd. was tied up for more than two hours.

Damage to the six-apartment building was estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000.

said Mrs. Aderman and her baby were "coming along fine."

Possibly 30 charity patients, some old-age pensioners, were on the third floor. Most of them were believed to have perished.

Nuns came from convents and hospitals of the Sisters of St. Francis in other Illinois cities to help care for the sick and injured. They relieved weary sisters, some with scorched veils, who had worked all night at temporary first aid stations in the hospital's boiler room and dairy barn.

Sister Anastasia, one of the nuns on duty, said she called the fire department, the hospital engineer and nuns who were asleep in the adjacent convent as soon as she smelled smoke.

By the time she ran to the patients on her floor, she said, "the whole hall was in flames."

The second floor nursery was the first ward consumed by the flames. A number of babies were discharged yesterday, but a dozen or more were in their baskets when the flames broke out.

Boy Thrown From Window

An 11-year-old boy, recently operated on for a heart ailment, was thrown from a window by his father. Both escaped with slight injuries.

Mrs. William Swain, who lives across the street from the hospital, said doctors "from miles around" came to help. She added:

"The pitiful thing was that they did not have enough drugs—only their emergency kits. Most of Effingham's drug supplies went up in flames with the hospital."

The nearest hospital is at Salem Ill., 28 miles away. But many Effingham homes were thrown open as temporary hospitals.

Rescue workers brought mattresses from a storeroom so that patients could jump on them from windows. Other workers laid rescued patients on the mattresses and then had to pull them away so that plunging patients would not fall on those who had been rescued.

A neighbor who took six patients into her home had to fight a second fire to save them. Mrs. Anna Miller, 55, said sparks from the hospital set the roof of her home or fire. Her son, Lowell, 25, had to climb on the roof to douse it with water from buckets because there wasn't enough pressure in the garden hose.

King Reprieves Woman Ordered To Gallows at 19

Manchester, England, April (AP).—Mrs. Renee Duffy, 19, was reprieved from the gallows by King George VI today, only 4 hours before she was to die for hammering her husband to death.

She played in her cell tonight with her 11-month-old son, George whom she had never expected to see again.

Mrs. Duffy testified in her trial the baby was a factor in a fatal quarrel with her husband, 23. She said her husband beat her and she decided to leave him, taking the child. Her husband tried to prevent her from taking the child she said, and she picked up a hammer and hit him twice.

Under the reprieve, Mrs. Duffy will be held in prison for an indefinite term.

Association to Sponsor 'Report on Atom' Film

New York, April 5 (AP).—The Motion Picture Association of America said today it would sponsor a production of a "Report on the Atom" movie—a "summing up of all . . . which can be told within the limit of national security."

Eric Johnston, president of the association, said the film "lifts the veil on much of the information on atomic energy which Americans are entitled to know."

He said the two-reel film, produced by the March of Time, would cover atomic development from the time of the first atom bomb explosion to the present.

ST. ANTHONY'S HOSPITAL IN EFFINGHAM, ILL., IS A SMOLDERING SHELL AFTER FATAL FIRE

A NEW LIFE—Out of the tragic hospital fire came a new hope. Removed from the flaming building, Mrs. Arnold Adermon, 24, gave birth to a son in a nearby house. The proud and happy father looks at the infant

Woman Flees Fire Hour Ahead of Son's Birth

By Mrs. June Aderman

Effingham, Ill., April 5 (AP).—I think our family was the only lucky one in the fire.

About 8:30 last night, I was taken to the hospital. I was put in the labor room with another girl.

About 11:30 a nurse took me to the delivery room.

In about 20 minutes I began to smell smoke. The nurse said she thought rubber gloves were being burned.

She went to investigate. But she came back and said nothing seemed wrong. But a minute later she went back into the hall.

It was filled with flames then.

The nurse slammed some double doors. Then she and another girl who was in the hall helped me to a window. We broke through.

Someone said the other girl in the labor room had jumped from the second floor. But later I heard she broke her back and lost her baby.

The three of us climbed out onto a roof. All we could see was straight walls down.

People seemed to be jumping from other parts of the building.

Some of them were sprawled on the ground.

Just then my husband and two other men ran up to the building with a ladder.

In Labor on Roof

By then I was in labor on the roof. But the nurse, the other girl and I were able to climb down the ladder.

My husband rushed me home. We live about 3 blocks away.

A short time later the baby was born.

My husband has named him Charles Lee, but everybody already is calling him "Lucky."

Republicans Win 'Comeback' Vote In Michigan

Detroit, April 5 (AP).—Michigan Republicans claimed a significant comeback victory today in this State's nationally watched spring election.

GOP candidates won each of the five partisan races in Monday's State ballot. They thus turned back the bid of Gov. G. Mennen Williams and his CIO supporters to gain control of the State's powerful administrative board.

In the focal race State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler beat off the bid of his Democratic opponent, John H. McCarthy, by a 429,292 to 338,983 margin.

In the other top contest, Republican Lee M. Thurston, incumbent State superintendent of public instruction, defeated Democrat E. Burr Sherwood by 421,129 to 328,660.

If the two Democrat candidates had won these races, they would have had a 5-3 majority on the administrative board. This body serves as a sort of "cabinet" to the State's Governor. As it is the Republicans have a 5-3 edge.

46-Million Tax Boost Rejected by Georgians

Atlanta, April 5 (AP).—Georgians sloshed through mud and rain today to vote overwhelmingly against $46,000,000 in new taxes for improved State services.

Reports from all over the State, including cities and rural precincts, rolled up an insurmountable margin of 3 to 1 against the program less than an hour and a half after polls closed.

The count was complete in 698 precincts, including many of the largest of the State's 1737. It showed 17,558 ballots for the program and 57,029 against.

Swedes Sending Soviet $12,600,000 in Goods

Stockholm, April 5 (AP).—Sweden will deliver to Russia this year iron and steel ball bearings and other goods valued at $12,600,000 the Swedish Foreign Office said tonight.

The announcement said an exchange agreement had been negotiated in Moscow under the Swedish-Russian trade pact.

Soviet exports to Sweden will include manganese ore, lubricating oil and asbestos. Other articles on the Swedish export list include welding electrodes, various tools, breeding cattle and pigs.

U. S. Wartime Controls Over Rail Freight End

The Office of Defense Transportation announced yesterday that it is setting aside the last of its general wartime controls over the movement of railroad freight.

Director J. Monroe Johnson said that the continuing decline in carloadings made the action possible. He noted that the car shortage has virtually disappeared.

Air Force Is Adding Three Dozen B-36s

Three dozen more giant B-36 bombers were ordered yesterday by the Air Force, emphasizing the USAF's concentration on the globe-ranging 10-engine bomber.

The announcement said that funds for the additional Consolidated-Vultee craft will be obtained by canceling the entire Air Force order for Boeing B-54s. The latter is an improved version of the lucky Lady II B-50 which recently flew nonstop around the world by refueling in the air.

It was recently reported that the new B-36—which will have six propeller-driven engines and four jets for takeoff and emergency high speed—could bomb major targets in Russia without serious interference.

Budget Shift Reported

Meanwhile, the House Armed Forces Appropriation subcommittee was reported to have approved the transfer of 800 million dollars in budgeted funds for universal military training to the Air Force. The money would be used to increase the number of groups to be maintained next year from 48 to 57 and boost new aircraft orders by 702 planes. There now are 59 groups in the process of getting back to proposed 48-group level.

Yesterday's announcement said that five more Boeing B-47 jet bombers, as well as the 36 additional B-36s, will be ordered by cancelling the B-54 order.

Ten of the B-47s already are on order. The prototype of this plane recently flew nonstop across the country in 3 hours and 46 minutes.

For Short Missions

"Hottest" of America's jet bombers, it would be used for support of ground troops and short range bombing missions—in contrast with the contemplated role of the B-54 and B-36 as long-range strategic craft designed to devastate enemy industrial centers.

At the same time, the Air Force announced that six groups of B-47s will be created—there now are two—and that each will have 30 planes instead of 18 as at present.

Two of the groups will be long range reconnaissance craft and four bombardment. Only 94 B-36s now are in order, and yesterday's announcement will raise the number to 130. However, in January, the Air Force announced tentative plans to cancel 300 million dollars worth of existing orders and spend the funds on additional B-36s and B-50s now in service. No final approval has been announced. Modernization is expected to cover adding four jet engines to the six propeller-type engines now on the craft.

Bradley Urges Merging Three Service Days

Abolition of Army, Navy and Air Force days in favor of a National Security Day was urged last night by the Army's head man.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff, said at a banquet of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York: "And, although tomorrow will mark the twenty-second year of Army Day observance, I would humbly propose that we end it.

"For if in ridding ourselves of wasteful competition they tend to coalesce, then we might better join hands in a single National Security Day."

Bradley thus focused n a concrete proposal an idea he planted last October in a Navy Day speech at Des Moines. Then he decried the services' "dog-eat-dog contests at the expense of the taxpayer's dollar," and ridiculed "generals and admirals and air marshals and field marshals specialists intent on beating their own drums."

Should Army, Navy and Air Force days be merged into one as Bradley suggested (and an act of Congress would be needed), the procedure would end celebrations which have been going on as long as 27 years.

The first Navy Day was observed October 27, 1922; the first Army Day April 6, 1929; the first day for the young Air Force less than a year ago on September 18, 1948.

Navy Day was sponsored by the Navy League and the date chosen was the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt who, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy and later as President, was a great Navy supporter. Until 1944, it was observed by opening Navy ships and stations; in the third year of World War II, security prevented the traditional form of observance, so the Navy held its first parade.

Air Force Day, designed to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the Army's purchase of its first airplane, was celebrated last year with open house at air bases, long flights of bombing aircraft, speeches, and a monster show in New York which was televised except for a spell when the cameras developed amnesia. Just then Gipsy Rose Lee was flinging her garments into the wild blue yonder to howls of delight from the spectators.

Army Day, which will be celebrated today for the twenty-second time, was organized by the Military Order of the World Wars, a society made up of officers who served in either or both world conflicts. The day, which is the anniversary of America's entry into World War I, was first observed in 1928. It was officially established by congressional resolution in 1937 and, except for the war years, has been observed with parades here since 1932.

The first Army Day of which local newspapers took notice was April 6, 1929. It was a simple ceremony on the steps of the old State, War and Navy Building. Principal speakers were Secretary of War James W. Good and Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of Staff. The program was broadcast by NBC.

Troops March Here

The 1931 observance first brought troops together in the Capital. On that Army Day, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley reviewed the Third Cavalry and the Sixteenth Field Artillery at Fort Myer and 29 Governors proclaimed the day officially in their States.

Parades have been a regular feature of Army Day since President Herbert Hoover reviewed the first as it marched up Pennsylvania ave. in 1932. From then until the United States was catapulted into World War II, the parades were continued, though they did not inspire universal approbation.

Pact Separated From Arms Bill to Avert Delay

Senate Administration leaders yesterday tried to sidetrack the row over rearmament of Europe from the path of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) told newsmen the pact and the still-to-be-drawn military bill implementing it "are two separate things."

He said the implementing bill, which will probably take the form of an appropriation measure, will not be considered in any event until after the Senate ratifies the North Atlantic Treaty.

"That (military supplies for Western Europe) will be a matter for the Senate and the House to decide on its own merits, in the light of conditions that may exist at that time," said Connally.

"The pact is not dependent on the implementing (military) bill for its ratification."

President Truman is expected to send the North Atlantic Treaty to the Senate early next week.

Following a brief meeting of his Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Connally tentatively scheduled "two or three weeks" of hearings starting around Monday, April 18.

The treaty will probably reach the Senate calendar some time in May and Connally said he will ask a "high priority" for it over pending domestic measures.

Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), confronted with a log-jam of "Fair Deal" domestic measures, would say only that the pact will be considered by the Senate "this session."

Only a handful of Senators have expressed any real opposition to the pact, as a regional defense alliance against possible aggression by Russia.

Most of the criticism on both sides of the aisle has been aimed at a subsidiary issue—how much if anything shall the United States spend on military supplies for participating nations in the first year of the treaty's operation.

Some had even suggested the possibility of an "interpretative reservation" to the pact, making clear that the treaty did not commit the United States to re-arm Europe.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), one of those who voiced concern about the scope and cost of military supplies to participants, told reporters however that a treaty reservation was not the answer.

He said the Administration should lay down a full bill of particulars on its European rearmament intentions during the forthcoming hearings to enable Senators to make up their minds on the treaty.

He said there is little or no opposition in the Senate to the treaty "standing alone"—that he has never questioned its value.

But he said he would reserve judgment on how he would vote until he knows "the full extent and effect of our military obligations."

Carr Pleads Innocent To Canada Spy Charge

Ottawa, April 5 (AP).—Sam Carr pleaded innocent today to a charge of conspiring with Russian Embassy officials to forge a passport for a Soviet spy.

Judge A. G. McDougall overruled a defense motion to have the indictment quashed on ground that it was improperly drawn. The defense also claimed Carr, alleged spy-ring leader arrested in New York in February, had not been given an opportunity to choose a nonjury trial.

Arms Aid Held Vital to Pact

gram and Russia's protests that it is "aggression."

"Militarily," said the general, the North Atlantic pact may become just as important to American security as possession of the atomic bomb."

Answer to Protests

Indirectly answering Soviet protests that the treaty is an aggressive act directed at Russia, Bradley said:

"If to be resolute is to be hostile—then we shall have to endure the slanders of those who call us hostile. For their slanders are the expressions of angry resentment from jackals denied their plunder."

As Bradley spoke, the lines were drawing for another historic battle over foreign policy. Alone, the pact itself probably would be ratified by the Senate without serious objection.

Administration officials and many persons on Capitol Hill, however, are convinced that ratification of the Atlantic pact without some military aid to Western Europe would mean failure of the entire movement for maintenance of world peace.

Without such assistance, they declared, the nations "on the firing line" would lose confidence in our sincerity.

$1.8 Billion Legislation

Officials now are at work putting the finishing touches on legislation authorizing such arms aid. The program is expected to total about $1,800,000,000, including continuation of the Greek-Turkey assistance programs, and might be followed later by additional aid.

Bradley told his New York listeners and a national radio network audience that he overcame his reluctance to speak on foreign policy because the North Atlantic pact and its defense problems are "so closely allied to our own armed strength that the American people deserve the candid opinions of their appointed advisers."

The United States, he said, no longer can "hide behind a mythical Atlantic Ocean which in time and space no longer exists."

"For the past year, the number one question mark of the world has been the United States, not Russia," Bradley said. "The Communists have demonstrated, by cynically reaching for what they wanted, that they know where they are going, and are getting there as fast as they can. . . .

'Stripped of Enigma'

"In signing the pact with other nations, we have acknowledged that solitary armed might is little better than unarmed isolation. . . . We have stripped ourselves of enigma, we have declared our intentions that they need not be misread by any aggressor nation. . . .

"Europeans know as well as we that neither American food, nor American wealth, nor even American arms can—in themselves—save Europe from aggression. In the final analysis, western Europe can be saved only by the western Europeans. But to save themselves they must have the will and the means to resist."

Bradley went on to say that without the latter, Europe will fall into despair "that is worth a hundred divisions to an aggressor." The Atlantic pact and arms aid, on the contrary, will "funnel the great strength of our New World to the ramparts of the Old."

"It must be perfectly apparent to the people of the United States," he continued, "that we cannot count on friends in western Europe if our strategy in the event of war dictates that we shall first abandon them to the enemy with a promise of later liberation.

"Yet that is the only strategy that can prevail if the military balance of power in Europe is to be carried on the wings of our bombers and deposited in reserves this side of the ocean. It is a strategy that would produce nothing better than impotent and disillusioned allies in the event of war."

'Hill' Warns Armed Forces On Bickering

A "full-scale" investigation of the armed forces was threatened yesterday by Congress if public bickering and disclosure of secret information does not cease.

The warning was given by the House Armed Services Committee in approving a resolution which declared that members of the Army, Navy and Air Force are "endangering the national security through their efforts to sell the public their own particular views."

The resolution, offered by Chairman Carl Vinson (Dd., Ga.), was put forward in lieu of a previously promised investigation of recent "leaks" from the Pentagon. After such Congressional threats, retiring Defense Secretary James Forrestal—with incoming Secretary Louis Johnson's full approval—ordered the public information offices of the Army, Navy and Air Force merged.

Johnson, after taking office, followed this up with a warning that "vying between the three services for headlines" was banned and that "no secrets will be released."

The "leaks" protested on Capitol Hill were reports that the Air Force had lined up 70 Russian cities as prime targets which could be bombed and that the giant USAF B-36 bomber could do the job without serious fighter or antiaircraft interference.

None of these disclosures were "officially inspired by the Air Department," said the committee resolution. It added that "it seems evident that so long as great controversy continues over the aircraft used by the Air Force, additional leaks are likely despite the best efforts of the National Military Establishment."

The committee said that a report on the "leaks" submitted by Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington could not be made public without disclosure of secret information. It added:

"If persons in the armed services, or in their employ, continue to pass statements to the press which are calculated to depreciate the activities of a sister service and which, at the same time, jeopardize the national security, the committee will step in with a full-scale investigation."

'Big 3' Warn West Germans

Bonn, Germany, April 5 (U.P.)—The United States, Britain and France politely but firmly reminded German politicians today that the west German government is going to be set up along the lines recommended by the occupying powers.

The argument was the old one over whether the new Germany should have a strong central government, or a loose federation of states as favored by the western powers.

Social Democratic Boss Kurt Schumacher and Carlo Schmidt, head of the party's delegation to the west German constitutional assembly at Bonn, said last week the Social Democrats would not go any further in concessions toward the occupation authorities.

Today the western military governors sent the Bonn assembly a message saying they were glad to see the assembly so "energetic" in its work. They added, however, they were "confident" that the future west German state would be designed in the federalist form.

Greek Rebels Win Back Key Peaks

Called Anti-Soviet

Bulgar Fired As Politburo Nationalist

Sofia, April 5 (AP).—Traicho Kostov, Deputy Premier and member of the Bulgarian Politburo, has been fired for nationalist tendencies and policies unfriendly to the Soviet Union. The Communist Party announced the ouster today.

Kostov

In a denunciation reminiscent of the attack by the Cominform Communists aginst Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, the central committee of the party blasted Kostov as an intriguer aiming at dissension within the Communist ranks.

Kostov has been Bulgaria's spokesman on numerous important international issues. Besides being removed from the deputy premiership and Politburo, the party's top governing body, he was fired from the presidency of the important economic and financial committee.

Kostov carried on insincere and unfriendly policy regarding the Soviet Union. He has tolerated nationalistic tendencies in state machinery and has encouraged them himself with his incorrect antiparty instructions," the announcement said adding:

"This evidence of the presence in him of nationalistic deviation is extremely harmful for the future state . . ."

Kostov also tried to displace Premier Georgi Dimitrov and the ministerial council in decisions on state questions, the statement said.

The Bulgarian press department noted that Kostov remains a member of the Communist Party central committee and that there was no question of his either having been expelled from the party or arrested.

The spokesman described as false a report of the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug that large number of state and party members had been arrested.

Athens, April 5 (U.P.).—Communist guerillas have seized at least half of the key peaks in the Grammos Mountains in a lightning assault which started Sunday, the Greek general staff admitted tonight.

Six government divisions spent all last summer winning these peaks from the "Free Greek" guerillas.

The Greek general staff's disclosure coincided with a Greek rebel broadcast announcing the formation of a new mountain "government." It included men of three nationalities.

The general staff communique told of a see-saw battle concentrated in a V-shaped wedge driven across the center of the Grammos range from the Albanian frontier. It said heavy fighting continued.

The general staff charged that armed Albanians are aiding the guerillas. They declared Albanians joined the Communist fighters in a clash with Greek forces near Simokhori, the Grammos Mountain village which was once the headquarters of ousted rebel chief Markos Vafiades, who directed last summer's defensive campaign.

The general staff said it was believed that the majority of the guerilla forces involved in this attack was trucked from Vitsi, in northern Greece, into Albania and then back into the Grammos area in a final attempt to gain a foothold south of the Albanian border before Yugoslavia closes her frontier to the "Free Greek" army.

The new guerilla regime is the first full "cabinet" since Markos was ousted. And for the first time it contains an Albanian and a Bulgar as well as Greeks.

The radio announcement listed Dimitrice Partsalides as president of the new regime and John Ioannides as vice president. The post of premier—Vafiades' former assignment—was not mentioned.

Other appointments listed by the broadcast included Pascali Mitrofski, of Bulgaria, as supply minister, and Stavro Gotcha of Albania, director of education for national minorities.

County Elections

Conservatives Make Gains in British Vote

London, April 5 (U.P.).—The Conservative Party gained strength in local council elections yesterday in five already-Conservative counties, but failed to shake government strength in two pro-Labor counties, returns showed tonight.

Final results from six of the seven English and Welsh counties showed that the Conservatives had won 35 new seats, taking 6 from Laborites and 29 from members of other parties.

Yesterday's voting was the first round in a week-long series of elections in the 62 counties of England and Wales. Fourteen more counties voted today, but returns had not yet been tabulated.

Spokesmen for both parties predicted victory in the 1950 general election on the basis of tonight's returns.

2 Poles Report Reds Poised for Attack

By the United Press

Two former Polish officials, who two months ago fled their Soviet-dominated homeland, said yesterday that Russia has more than 300,000 troops in Poland ready for an attack on the West which "may come this year."

They also said that purges have been carried out in the Polish army and air force, with "unreliables" replaced by Russian officers and men. Soviet commissars also have been brought into the army, they said.

The two are Stanislaw Banczyk and Stanislaw Wojcik, vice chairman and secretary general, respectively, of the Polish Peasant Party. They were presented at a news conference by Stanislaw Mikolajozyk, former Polish vice premier, who was their interpreter.

In a joint statement, they gave a detailed report on what they said were intensified military preparations in Poland within the last six months, including Russian war maneuvers on the Baltic, Communist indoctrination of the young, storing of medical supplies, and the rebuilding of highways and army barracks.

Banczyk and Wojcik, who said they carried out underground intelligence work for the Allies during World War II, arrived last week. They indicated they passed through Germany and had been in England.

Both reported heightened Russian activity toward reconditioning all roads leading across Poland from the West to the East "with bridges being widened and strengthened." Work on the so-called "W-Z super highway" continued day and night, they said, to double the Russians' East-West capacity.

All these things, they agreed, are signs that Moscow is preparing Poland as a "springboard of Soviet aggression against the west."

They said that since the spring of 1948 political commissars in the Polish army have been telling the soldiers that war with the west "is necessary."

They reported that in 1947 the Soviets prepared a special file of 1,200,000 Poles suspected of anti-Communist leanings. During the past six months, they said, many named in the file have been arrested with some deported to Russia and the majority placed in prison or released on condition they report regularly to the police.

Armistice Talk Starts, Stops

Rosh Pina, Palestine, April 5 (U.P.).—Armistice negotiations between Syria and Israel opened here today but immediately broke down when the Israeli delegates refused to deal with representatives of Syria's new military regime.

The conference was adjourned to Friday while an attempt is made to solve the problem.

The delegates met in a small camp of tents pitched at a neutral spot in no-man's land between the Israeli and Syrian lines.

When Col. Fawzi Selo, chief of the Syrian delegation, presented credentials signed by Syria's new army chief, Col. Hossni Zaim, the Israeli delegates refused to negotiate. They said the delegates must represent a "legally constituted government."

Insein Won, Burmese Say

Rangoon, Burma, April 5 (AP).—Sources close to the government said rebel Karen forces in suburban Insein offered unconditional surrender today.

Saw Ba U Gyi, president of the Karen National Union, was said to have come to Rangoon to sign the surrender. Insein, 10 miles north of Rangoon, has been in rebel hands since early February.

The government reported another important victory yesterday, announcing the recapture of Mandalay. Government forces were attacking toward Maymyo, to the north.

The Burmese army announced the arrest of Ko Ko Gyi, former president of the Socialist Party who resigned as commerce minister last July and went underground when accused of embezzlement. He was reported to have formed a Union of Burma Communist Party. There was no evidence that it was linked with either the Red Flag or White Flag Communist groups, which have been campaigning against the government.

Reds Reported Withdrawing Along Yangtze

Nanking, April 5 (AP).—Chinese Communist troops today were reported retiring on a broad front along the Yangtze River, possibly as a result of peace talks in Peiping.

After several days of preliminary discussions, the formal peace talks opened in Peiping today, said the semiofficial Central Daily News.

Military observers thought it a little early to tell whether the troop movement came from a cease-fire order. Unofficial sources insist the Reds have agreed "in principle" on a government cease-fire proposal.

(The Communist radio in a Peiping broadcast again declared Red armies soon will cross the Yangtze, regardless of negotiations.)

The Chinese press said military authorities at Chinkiang, headquarters city 40 miles down the Yangtze from Nanking, confirmed that the withdrawals were in progress on the front opposite Nanking and Shanghai.

Other dispatches said the Communists had halted their attacks on Anking, north bank city 150 miles southwest of Nanking, and were pulling out to the north.

Truman Gets Bill Giving Basques Right to Stay

Forty-eight Basque sheepherders who came to this country to help save Nevada's sheep-raising industry would be permitted to become citizens under a bill passed by the House and sent to President Truman yesterday.

The Basques came here from Spain on temporary visitors' permits. But their services are so badly needed that a House committee recommended they be allowed to stay in the United States.

Senate Votes Down Moves to Cut ECA Spending

Amendments Rejected

For awhile, the summer session warning appeared to have had some effect. With Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) pressing for a final count, the Senate rejected like clockwork a long line of amendments the Administration opposed, approved a couple the Administration "accepted."

The only two amendments to get into the bill were sponsored by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.).

One of these was designed to have 50 per cent of Marshall Plan goods shipped in American flag vessels, "insofar as practicable," and when such vessels were available.

This amendment, giving ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman much more discretion in the matter than the mandatory Magnuson-Bland bill, was approved by a voice vote.

Against Foreign Registry

A second Magnuson amendment "accepted" by Connally was designed to bar American citizens owning ships from operating them under Panama, Honduras or other foreign registry.

Other amendments were routed by comfortable margins, some of them more than two to one.

Closest call came on an amendment by Senator Jenner (R., Ind.). Jenner tried to prohibit ECA purchase of agricultural goods outside the United States, if such goods were in surplus here. The initial ECA Act carried general provisions to this effect, but Jenner tried to make it a flat requirement.

The amendment was defeated 48 to 32. Only six Democrats voted with 26 Republicans for it.

Ellender Proposals Beaten

Earlier two amendments proposed by Senator Ellender (D., La.), pending before the Senate for days, were hammered down.

One, requiring at least 25 per cent of so-called "counterpart funds" of participating countries to be spent on startegic materials for the United States, was defeated 22 to 56.

Another, designed to prohibit use of Marshall Plan funds for payments on the national debt of participating countries, was rejected, 27 to 55.

Senators Baldwin (R., Conn.) and McCarthy (R., Wis.) next tried to write specific language into the bill barring interference with competitive American enterprise in any of the ECA nations. Both Baldwin and McCarthy singled out French Morocco as an example of alleged discriminatory customs duties and other practices interfering with Americans attempting to do business in that province.

Baldwin's amendment was defeated, 22 to 59, after Connally said ECA officials are investigating the Moroccan situation.

McCarthy's even tighter anti-discrimination amendment was later rejected, 45 to 33.

Police Question Father of Two in Death of Girl, 19

Huntington, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—Police today questioned a 27-year-old father of two children about the sleeping tablet death of 19-year-old Katherine Ellis.

The girl was removed last night to a hospital from a hotel room where she and the man had been registered as a married couple for three days, Police Detectives Paul Bloss and Harry Farris said.

The man had telephoned a physician and reported that his companion had taken a quantity of the tablets.

Bloss and Farris quoted the man as saying:

"Katherine kept fussing at me to divorce my wife and marry her. She said she was in love with me and I was in love with her, but my wife and children stood in the way."

No charge has been filed.

Ralph Daughton Asked to Head Norfolk Ticket

Norfolk, Va., April 5 (AP).—Ralph H. Daughton ended a three-year holiday from politics today with the disclosure that a group of citizens is seeking to oust the entire Norfolk City Council by means of a recall election.

He has been asked to head a "good government" ticket to replace the present five-man council, said Daughton. He represented the second district in Congress in 1944-1946.

Daughton said he was asked to head a new ticket by a group of 26 persons "representing several political camps." He said he is not at liberty to identify the persons.

The 26, he said, are "worried about several things: annexation, police corruption and vice conditions, free spending by council and the importation of men to serve as executives in the city government."

Gaullists Lose Bid For New Elections

Paris, April 5 (NYHT).—France has voted often enough since the liberation and does not need any more elections before the "prescribed time," November, 1951, Premier Henri Queuille said today.

He was answering a demand by followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle that the National Assembly be dissolved and new general elections held.

The Gaullists were defeated, 358 to 46, on a motion to ask the government to state "what conclusions it intended to draw" from the results of the recent cantonal elections.

Graham Hits Dutch, Soviet on Indonesia

Police Witness In Norfolk Probe

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

C. A. WITHROW,

a patrolman, whose testimony that he forwarded bribes to Norfolk policemen resulted in the indictment of 24 officers by a grand jury Monday

Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.) yesterday assailed "imperialists" of the Netherlands and Russia who, he said, are responsible for bloodshed and war in Indonesia.

Graham, now hospitalized with pneumonia, made public a 69-page report on the Indonesian dispute, which he said threatened the future of the United Nations and world peace.

The former president of North Carolina University served as United States representative on a U. N. Committee of Good Offices, which sought peace between the Dutch and the Indonesian Republic in 1947 and 1948. His report was placed in the Congressional Record.

Report Places Blame

Failure to find peace on a basis of the 1947 Renville Agreement rested with "(1) the Dutch financial-imperialistic-militaristic combination which first misleads and then misrepresents the great Dutch people, and (2) the Soviet dictators, who first mislead and then misrepresent the great Russian people," the report said.

Some Dutch leaders, it stated, have "violated the most elemental sense of human decency" and practiced a policy of "delay, attrition" and bad faith. Soviet "imperialists," like their Dutch counterparts, it added, feared the coming of civil rights to Europe, the Far East and the Soviet states as well.

Senate Action Urged

Graham urged the Senate to adopt a compromise resolution which would withhold European recovery funds from any state against which U.N. takes preventative or enforcement action through sanctions. Such a proposal has been drafted by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and the State Department as a substitute for an amendment by Senator Brewster (R., Me.), who seeks immediate withdrawal of United States aid to the Netherlands.

Action of the Netherlands government in alleged violation of truce agreements, the Renville accord and U.N. Security Council orders, said Graham, is a "challenge" of U. N. authority of "grave import" to the entire world.

"The ghosts of Ethiopia and Manchuria from the tomb of the old League of Nations haunt today the chambers of the United Nations," he said. "The Assembly of the United Nations will yet call to the judgment bar of mankind all those, who, with force of arms, defy the orders of the United Nations to cease fire and resume the procedures of peace.

U. N. Obligation Seen

The United Nations, in the face of a threat to the peace of the world, cannot by drift or default escape the obligations of its great charter."

Graham predicted the people of the Netherlands would "repudiate these officials who misrepresented their noble name before the world."

He said that both the Indonesian Republic and the Dutch must bear blame for atrocities. But Indonesian officials, he said, exhibited a "conciliatory" attitude toward the Dutch, while Netherlands officials broke the truce, demanded a surrender in 24 hours by "ultimatum," and blocked international efforts toward conciliation.

House Group Urges More for Cold War

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday urged for four Government departments more cash than they asked to fight the cold war, while slashing their total funds 7 per cent.

In reporting out an omnibus appropriation bill for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and the Federal Judiciary, the committee recommended that they be given $55,407,354 less than the $740,023,456 asked by President Truman. But it raised the Justice Department's requested total by $177,141 for the FBI's antisubversive work, and recommended $2,900,000 for State's "Voice of America."

As reported to the House, the bill carries a total of $684,616,102 in cash appropriations and $62,600,000 in contract authority, an overall total of $747,216,102.

It was broken down as follows:

State Department: Asked, $285,313,756; recommended, $271,405,656, plus $2,900,000 contract authority.

Justice Department: Asked $132,402,000; recommended, $132,579,141 plus $900,000 contract authority.

Commerce Department: Asked, $301,073,500; recommended, $259,927,605 plus $58,800,000 contract authority.

Judiciary: Asked, $21,234,200; recommended, $20,703,700.

For the FBI, the committee recommended $8,865,141 more than Congress appropriated for the agency last year. The FBI is engaged in a greatly expanded job of combating subversives in this country.

The total recommended for the Voice of America, the agency through which the State Department seeks to penetrate the Iron Curtain and to explain America to it friends abroad, was 34 million dollars.

With the 1950 census in prospect, the committee recommended the Census Bureau of the Commerce Department be given 43 million dollars for that purpose. The new census is expected to show a population of 150 million or more.

The committee took occasion in its report to criticize several agencies. These criticisms included:

1. The State Department has been operating on a "crisis basis," answering every new problem by creating a new division.

2. Too much money has been contributed by the U. S. to international organizations and these grants should be more carefully screened.

CAB, CAA Criticized

3. There is "bad management" in the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

4. The CAB and the CAA were guilty of "fervent pleas" in behalf of the airlines, which should be self-supporting since they can pay large salaries to their executives.

Along with its report the committee released the transcripts of hearings on the money bills, some of which had been held behind closed doors. Among features of this testimony were:

1. Assistant Secretary of State Garrison Norton labeled Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky a "racketeer" and said the United States sooner or later might have to use "retaliation" against Communists in Cuba for discrimination against American shipping.

2. Assistant Secretary of State Charles E. Salzman said the State Department had no prepared plan for taking over administration of occupied Germany from the Army.

Encouraging Unions

3. Salzman also said it was State Department policy to encourage growth of labor unions in Germany and Japan although Representative Flood (D., Pa.) charged this policy has caused a rise in communism in Germany and had increased the number of Communists in the Japanese Diet 10 times.

4. A United States mail order catalog in the American Information Library in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, caused a traffic jam when readers lined up wanting to buy from it.

5. FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover said a check by his agency found the son of a Communist Party organizer working in an atomic energy research laboratory.

7. Hoover said some 78 million persons cross and recross the Northern and Southern U. S. borders yearly and there is no way to check on them or to screen out undesirable aliens.

Forrestal In Hospital

JAMES FORRESTAL
". . . seriously ill"

Forrestal Ill In Hospital

Louis Johnson, was sworn in. He showed then the nervous strain of his 18 months of service in his Cabinet post and his prior wartime service as Secretary of the Navy.

Apparently, they said, he did not get the rest he sought and needed. The resort sector, in Martin County, Fla., is dotted with estates of many of Forrestal's friends.

Forrestal, increasingly distressed, sought the advice of a physician, and shortly thereafter was flown to Washington, it was reported.

At the Forrestal home, 3508 Prospect st. nw., a woman who identified herself as the "parlor maid" said she had received a telephone call at 10 p. m., Monday, from Mrs. Forrestal, in Florida. She said Mrs. Forrestal said nothing to indicate her husband was either ill or in Washington.

One Naval Hospital aide, indicating the patient's condition was not critical, said he "guessed" Forrestal could receive friends in his hospital suite "if he wants to." He declined to permit a reporter to see the former Secretary.

House Approves $701,122,079 for Agriculture Dept.

The House last night passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate a $701,122,079 appropriation for operation of the Agriculture Department during fiscal 1950.

The House approved the measure as recommended by the Appropriations Committee, which cut it $25,757,829 under budget estimate.

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking Republican member, disagreed with that. He said it actually is $66,412,071 above budget requests in that $91,750,000 for the Farmers Home Administration, requested as an appropriation, was inserted in the bill as borrowing authority. Under that maneuver, he said, the money still is spendable.

Tass Declares Soviet Is Now 100 Pct. Literate

London, April 5 (AP).—Tass, the official Russian news agency, said today there is not an illiterate person in the Soviet Union, but the United States has 20 million illiterates.

The agency quoted Alexander Voznesensky, minister of education of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, the state in which Moscow lies, as authority.

Man Asks Mayor To Help Get Back Wife by Song

Trenton, N. J., April 5 (U.P.).—A Cumberland, (Md.) man asked Mayor Donal J. Connolly of Trenton today to help him haunt his wife with a song.

Shannon W. Hoover sent Connolly mimeograph of a letter saying his wife had left him and their six children and had run away with a married man who has four children.

"I want to appeal to people all over the Nation," Hoover wrote, "to help me bring out my song 'How Can I Ignore You When I Adore You?' So that wherever my wife may be, she will hear and be haunted by it. Wherever she may be, I want her always to hear it on the radio, on juke boxes, or hear orchestras playing and someone singing it."

Truman Concerned Over Jobless Gain

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday "evidenced some concern" over the unemployment situation, CIO President Phil Murray disclosed following a White House visit.

Murray, in a half-hour visit, pointed out to the President that unemployment had risen to 3,200,000 in February, and that although there'd been a slight drop in March to 3,167,000, the number of "underemployed" was steadily rising.

By "underemployed," Murray meant the "several millions who are working on a part time basis from 15 to 20 hours a week" in such recession-hit industries as textiles, boots and shoes, rubber products and mining.

In a memorandum presented to President Truman, the CIO leader said:

"A careful analysis indicates that present levels of unemployment and underemployment relate to the inability of our economy, as it is now operating, to absorb the current annual increment in the labor force of approximately one million workers. This situation will pyramid from year to year."

Five Stimulants Proposed

To attain and maintain full employment and to prevent an increase in unemployment, Murray urged the Nation to take five steps:

1. Increase total purchasing power by increasin the wages and incomes of the mass of American people.

2. Stabilize the price structure by reducing profit margins.

3. Increase plant capacity in the basic industries such as steel, electric power, aluminum, etc.

4. Promote public housing and public works with Federal funds.

5. Give increasing attention to fiscal and tax policy.

While working for lang-range full employment, Murray told the President, action must be taken to deal with the "temporary," unemployment situation. That means, Murray said, increasing and extending over a greater period unemployment compensation benefits.

Relocation of Workers

"We must also plan for the relocation of certain workers who have been displaced in certain areas where reemployment opportunities have diminished," the CIO chief declared.

Murray urged the President to deliver a special message to Congress along the lines of Murray's memorandum.

The CIO leader revealed after his White House visit that Mr. Truman was going right down the line for his programs including civil rights and repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is still the No. 1 objective of the CIO, Murray told the reporters.

Asked about the legislative outlook for the Administration's repeal bill, Murray said "the position in the House is very good," but that in the Senate "there has to be a change of attitude on the part of some Senators" if the measure is to get through.

Anti-Spy Bill Dangers Seen

A bill to arm the Government with new powers against spies and saboteurs was challenged by Senators yesterday as a possible threat to individual rights and freedom of the press.

Hearings on the Administration measure, worked out by intelligence experts, opened a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Senator Eastland (D., Miss.)

Maj. Gen. S. Leroy Irwin, the Army's director of intelligence, said all the armed services support the bill as means of plugging legal gaps that let persons obtain vital defense information "without fear of prosecution in our courts."

He testified the legislation "will substantially correct the deficiencies in our present laws without attempting in any way to invade the privileges and immunities of our citizens."

But Eastland promptly asked if one part of the bill "isn't a very rabid departure from our system of Government?"

He referred to provisions for a year's imprisonment and a $5000 fine for anyone who willfully violated an order issued by the Secretary of Defense to safeguard ships, airplanes, harbors and airfields.

Eastland protested this was unusual power to give to an executive official and said an individual would have to read rules, as well as the law, to know whether he were acting legally.

Capt. Samuel W. Dubois, a naval intelligence officer, said the sections were intended for wartime use to protect vital installations against sabotage. Attorney General Clark told the committee a similar law was in effect from 1943 to 1947.

Eastland contended protection should be afforded by law, rather than by executive rules. Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) questioned the need for giving the Secretary of Defense such authority in peacetime.

Seriously Hurt

Ex-Rep. Buck Shot Down Near Office

New York, April 5 (AP).—Former Representative Ellsworth B. Buck, 58, was shot down in front of his Staten Island office today and seriously wounded. His assailant was captured.

A former merchant marine engineer, Charles Van Newkirk, 57, of Amherst, N. H., was charged with felonious assault.

District Attorney Herman Methfessel, a witness to the shooting, said he was investigating the possibility that Van Newkirk sought revenge for the loss of a job in a congressional investigation.

At Staten Island Hospital, physicians said Buck's condition was serious but that he was expected to live.

Van Newkirk, police said, admitted the shooting, but refused to give any motive.

Buck, a Republican, represented New York's Sixteenth Congressional District for three terms. He retired from politics last December 31 after refusing renomination.

He served at one time as president of the New York Board of Education.

The district attorney said Van Newkirk was discharged from the Merchant Marine in World War I for an undisclosed reason.

He appealed his discharge to a congressional committee of which Buck was a member. The committee refused to reinstate him.

Lynchburg, Va., April 5 (AP).—Lynchburg College trustees set up a 12-member committee today to nominate a successor to Dr. Rill B. Montgomery as president, and decided to meet again April 19.

Md. Account System Ready

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—After almost two years of study and discussion, a special State commission came out today with its uniform system of accounting for Maryland's counties and cities.

The counties, cities and taxing districts have at least nine months now to comply with the State law that makes the system mandatory upon them "as soon as practical after January 1, 1950."

One of the purposes is to facilitate the distribution of revenues which the State collects and doles out to the subdivisions.

The commission's notice about the new system was sent out to local governments with a thick sheaf of sample forms for making reports.

These include a balance sheet, a statement of changes in fund balances, a statement of revenues and a statement of salaries, other operating expenses and capital outlay.

There are supplemental forms of taxes, receivable, special assessments receivable, investments, capital assets, temporary debts payable, long-term indebtedness and statistical data.

The reports are to be furnished periodically to the State's fiscal research bureau and audited annually by the State auditor, an auditing committee, or a certified accountant.

National Security Day

Gen. Omar N. Bradley said many things of significance in his Army Day speech Tuesday night, but none was of more importance than his proposal to end the separate service commemoration days in favor of one National Security Day. Here would be a significant contribution to nexus. It would end the yearly habit of individual services of blowing their own horns in a rival's face. The Army itself set the proper theme: "part of the team—for security." Why not go further, and, we tremble to write it, abolish the Army-Navy game? Is it not time to recognize in these symbolic ways that the real mission of the three services is to be part of a larger entity—the defense of the United States?

Government In Business

The Hoover Commission's report on Federal Business Enterprises deals with a highly important and imperfectly explored field of Government activity that is sadly in need of attention. For many agencies mushroomed during the years of depression and expanded during the war period. Today two score such agencies are engaged in lending, guaranteeing and insuring operations. They represent a Government investment of 12.5 billion dollars and some of them have also obtained funds from private investors.

There is crying need for organizational reforms to enable these agencies to perform their tasks more efficiently and economically; and it is most unfortunate that the Hoover Commission did not concentrate on that assignment. Instead it exceeded its authority by criticizing governmental policies embodied in statutory law and urging changes in such policies. The result has been a split in the commission that finds expression in the sharply dissenting opinions of various members.

Dean Acheson, the commission's vice chairman, who is now Secretary of State, Professor Pollock and Mr. Rowe declare that the organizational approach itself is that of the accountant and is "wholly wrong," since the agencies studied were organized for very different purposes, though they happen to use one or more of the techniques of lending, insuring or guaranteeing. They also criticize the majority report because it recommends sweeping changes in basic national policies that are beyond its province. Another Commissioner, James Forrestal, former Secretary of Defense, likewise voiced objections to certain policy recommendations, such as the proposal to deny Government agencies the power to engage in direct lending and to parcel out to other agencies the functions of the Farmers Home Administration. Former Congressman Manasco joined the chorus of dissent by coming to the defense of the Farmers Home Administration, while Senator McClellan stated that some of the recommendations did not have his unqualified indorsement and that in his legislative capacity he reserved the right to oppose the ones with which he disagreed.

The commission was so rent by dissension concerning public power and irrigation projects and policies that the majority report made no recommendations at all in regard to these enterprises. Individual commissioners, however, sharply criticized the task force studies on the ground that they adopted the line of reasoning of private utilities and ignored the vital function performed by Federal reclamation and power projects in furthering the general welfare.

This internecine strife is the inevitable result of the commission's unwise action in proposing policy changes of a highly controversial nature. Regardless of the merits of such recommendations, they have no place in a report that should be confined to a discussion of organizational changes. Yet, if they are ignored, as they should be, not much of constructive value is left apart from recommendations for improving defective accounting practices and the proposal to put all housing activities in one agency under a single administrator. The latter suggestion meets with general approval, but, as the commission itself points out, the work of bringing the housing agencies together has already made substantial progress. The really difficult task lies ahead: to convert the Housing and Home Finance Agency into an effective working whole. The mere bringing together of hitherto independent agencies under a single head is only the first and easiest step toward achieving the purpose of shifts of this kind. Yet the commission offers no suggestion as to how to weld these separate agencies into an efficiently functioning whole.

Since the majority report is not acceptable to influential members of the commission itself, it is not likely to carry much weight with Congress. It would have been wiser for the commission to have abandoned efforts to deal with a subject on which it was unable to offer a practical program that would not arouse political opposition or antagonize legislators who might support much needed, but strictly organizational, reforms.

Witches' Brew

Western Germany begins to resemble a witches' brew in which the Allies are cooking future trouble for themselves and for all of Europe. Drew Middleton of The New York Times cables that affairs in the western zones have reached "a critical period." This is due partly to continuing Allied disagreements, partly to the fact that the Social Democrats are attracting "many nationalists and neo-Fascists" to their side by demanding a highly centralized west German government. All this might have been foreseen. This newspaper protested repeatedly last spring and summer against setting up a western German sovereignty instead of pressing forward with the rapid economic integration of the west German states into a unified Europe. We have not yet seen the last of the evils to flow from this rash and hasty appeasement of German nationalism. Far from propitiating the western Germans, it has made them more nationalistic, more demanding, more obstructive.

It will be said, no doubt, that the creation of a west German government has been decided upon, and that we are wasting printer's ink in objecting to it. But the Allied governments have not yet agreed on what kind of government they want, and, consequently, have not been able to make their wishes known in clear and unmistakable fashion. The military governors came nearest to such clarity last November when they announced that the new German constitution, or "basic law," should specifically limit the powers of the federal government and should leave control of police, education and public health to the Laender. The central power should be still further limited. There is yet time, with the German politicians wrangling at Bonn over their new constitution, for the Allied Foreign Ministers, who happen to be here in Washington, to agree, and to make their agreement known.

The Foreign Ministers will have to ignore all kinds of pressure in making wise decisions about Germany—pressure from doctrinaire Socialists in Britain, to whom the nationalization of German industries is overshadowingly important; from those French die-hards who now hanker for annexation of the port of Kehl, opposite Strasbourg; from the members of our own Congress who judge every policy by whether it will save money to the taxpayer; from the warminded who want to make Germany into a buffer against Russia; and from the Russians and their sympathizers, who always have their own fish to fry.

The powers of the new German government should be rigidly and specifically limited. If this does not satisfy the Germans, the creation of a central government should be postponed. Pinpricks to German pride can be avoided by putting the emphasis of our policy on bringing the Germans into the European community. Specifically the Allies should lose no time in letting Germans represent the western zones in the OEEC and in putting a German on the international tribunal which will settle disputes under the new occupation statute. The occupation, moreover, should come increasingly under civilian control. In this connection we are sorry to hear that Gen. Mark Clark, rather than a civilian, is likely to succeed General Clay as American governor. Finally, the criterion of Allied policy should not be what it will cost, but rather what it will achieve in safeguarding Europe and in giving the Germans their rightful place in the community of free peoples.

Engineer Powers

The one-vote margin by which the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee declined to exempt the Corps of Engineers from the reorganization authority asked by the President is a measure of the intensity of the campaign the Engineers have been waging. The victory, to be sure, is a wormy one. For it is coupled with the "one house veto" by which either body of Congress could stymie the Administration's reorganization proposals. This, in our opinion, is a perversion of the purpose of executive revamping which could thwart all but the most innocuous plans.

Nevertheless, the recognition that the private empire of the Army Engineers ought not to be exempted from the overhauling of executive agencies is significant, and in this respect the Senate bill is an improvement over the version passed by the House. On grounds of good public policy, the argument for nonexemption applies across the board, but it is especially important in the case of the Engineers. This nonmilitary extension of the Army into flood control and navigation has run virtually without check. The Engineers have defied most efforts to integrate their activities into broader programs of valley and resource development. A principal recommendation of the Hoover Commission in its report on the Department of the Interior is that the Army Engineers be divested of their civil functions.

Particularly ludicrous is the contention of special pleaders that civil functions of the Engineers constitute good training for war. The Hoover Commission points out that of more than 50,000 persons employed by the Corps of Engineers on flood control and rivers and harbors work, only about 200 are Army officers. This amounts to pretty expensive training.

Just how expensive it is is difficult to judge, because rivers and harbors appropriations have been a favorite area for congressional pork-barreling. In practice the Engineers are responsible only to Congress, and not even the Secretary of Defense has real control over their civil functions. The President, in his 1950 budget, called for 481 million dollars for flood control to be carried out by the Engineers. Certainly much of this will be expended on desirable projects, but, along with these projects, there are others, such as the Pick-Sloan plan for the Missouri River, which are definitely competitive and wasteful.

The most cogent reason for taking flood control and navigation away from the Army Engineers is that these are not military functions. This does not mean that they should go to the Bureau of Reclamation, which itself has resisted unification. Flood control and irrigation together are only part of the conservation job. The crying need is for authority to place these projects in their proper perspective in the protection of all of America's natural resources.

No Double Taxation

Harsh words carrying utterly false information are being hurled at the District tax bill which the House passed last week. One critic has gone so far as to denounce The Washington Post in the belief that our approval of the bill implies approval of double taxation of Government employes living here. The idea is absurd. Neither in the present law nor in the bill that the House passed is there any provision that can honestly be called double taxation.

It is true that a few Federal employes who live here pay taxes to the States in which they retain their legal domicile and voting rights. But this does not mean they are taxed twice for purposes of local government. The present law contains an offset provision allowing anyone who files a District income tax return to deduct from his local tax the full amount of any income or, intangible property taxes, or both, he may have paid to his home State. Since most of the 35 States having income taxes levy higher rates than those in effect here, this means that the great majority of the District residents who are paying State income taxes pay nothing here. In a few instances, where State income tax rates are lower than those prevailing in the District, a taxpayer living here may be required to divide the tax he pays between the District and his home State. But in no case will his combined payments amount to more than is paid by other District residents with similar incomes and exemptions.

What the House bill does, in addition to levying a sales tax and increasing liquor and real property taxes, is to bring under the District income-tax law a large number of local residents who have escaped all local income taxes in the past.

This, we insist, is simple justice. Indeed, Congress has been very generous to the States in giving them first claim upon the income of their citizens who are living in the District and taking advantage of all the municipal services provided here. But the House has at last said that Government employes living here and domiciled in one of the States may not take advantage of that fact to escape all local income taxes. To be sure, the new tax would apply only to persons with incomes in excess of $4000. But the elimination of the favoritism from the present law, while maintaining the safeguards against double taxation, is a victory of no mean significance.

Muted Milton

We knew, of course, that Comrade Stalin is in many ways the most remarkable person of his age, a brilliant philosopher, a magnificent military strategist, an amateur of the fine arts, a social engineer and author of innumerable five-year plans, a wit, a raconteur, yet withal a man of action and enterprise—in short the very uomo universale of which the Renaissance pedagogues used to dream. But there is one thing we didn't know until we learned of it the other day from Comrade Joel Remes in the New York Daily Worker. Stalin is also a poet.

Or, at any rate he was a poet. One of the reasons the world has been so long ignorant of this interesting facet of Stalin's life and character is no doubt the personal modesty for which he is also famous. But another reason may be that his poems were written in his native Georgian, a language which, unfortunately, not many outside the immediate neighborhood of the Caucasus Mountains are able to read. One of the poems, it seems, was published in a local newspaper, and Comrade Remes quotes a few lines from it in translation.

> Whose back is bent with toil unending,
> Who knelt but yesterday in thrall,
> Will rise, I say, the mountain's envy
> On wings of hope, high over all.

Comrade Remes, we dare say, would be the first to admit that the English rendering does much less than justice to the subtle beauties of the original; but at least it gives us some inkling of what beauties may be there. Whether Stalin still writes verses in his moments of relaxation, we don't know, since Comrade Remes has neglected to tell us. It is probable that he deliberately sacrificed this rare gift to the cause of the toiling and oppressed masses. Yet we cannot but conclude that, however much the masses have benefited by his zeal and solicitude, the world of letters is all the poorer.

Indeed, when Stalin decided to embrace the cause of revolution and thus become the trusted collaborator and heir of the sainted Lenin, he might, like another poet whose style much resembles his own, have ejaculated: "What an artist has perished!"

Strengthening The U. N.

The Russian protest against the North Atlantic Pact states that the conclusion of that treaty "is motivated by the weakness of the United Nations organization." There is only one constructive answer to the protest: to invite Russia and the other nations to an informal conference to exchange views on strengthening the United Nations organization.

The present "cold war" can end only either through a real peace, which requires in any case a stronger United Nations organization, or through real war. The time is appropriate to try the first alternative. For the cold war has come to a stalemate. On the one hand, we cannot hope to redress the situation in China or in eastern Europe. On the other hand, the Soviets are likely to see that neither their hopes with respect to western Europe nor their expectation of a collapse of the American economy will materialize. The Russian "peace offensive" may indicate such insight. It is also probable that both parties are sincerely afraid of stumbling into a war which none of them wishes.

Unnecessary Sales Tax

Congressional action on the sales tax does not, in my opinion, absolve The Washington Post of the guilt—intentional or through ignorance—in its persistent reference to the measure as a 2 per cent levy. If The Washington Post had no wish to deceive its readers, it might go to the pains of telling them under just what conditions of sale the tax will work out to an even 2 per cent and how much more than 2 per cent it will amount to in most cases.

Post readers would also be interested, I am sure, in knowing how much the well-heeled real-estate lobby had to do with the passage of this so-called 2 per cent sales tax, and why it became necessary all of a sudden.

Judged by statements in your issue of March 27, if Washington property owners paid on a more equitable basis, this raid on poor people's pockets would be unnecessary.

Further, if Congress were not so tender-hearted about collecting income tax from those who earn their incomes in the District, such an excise would not be needed.

To me, the whole thing boils down to the Capital of the richest nation in the world being held up to the world as a pauper city, unable to finance its minimum needs without digging into the pockets of those least able to pay. CLAUDE N. PALMER.

Diplomatic Pensions

As a new Foreign Service bill is now in preparation at Washington, may I be permitted to speak of a crying omission in the present law (the Foreign Service Act of 1946) which demands correction?

That act granted millions in perpetuity in higher salaries for active officers and increased pensions based upon these salaries. In it the young men in what is known as the Division of Foreign Service Planning, planned well—for themselves. But they closed their eyes completely to the nearly 250 veteran officers in retirement, most of whom have had from 30 to 40 years of active service. Their pensions are based upon the more meager salaries of the early era.

During 1947 representatives of these retired officers made continued protest to the Department of State, and as a result the director general of the Foreign Service wrote to interested parties, including Senator Saltonstall and Senator Cain: "The department has decided that, to serve the purpose of equitable treatment, officers retired before the act of 1946 should be placed on a par with those retiring in future under its provisions."

In pursuance of this declaration the department, in June 1948, laid before the Bureau of the Budget a draft of a proposed bill. Strangely, however, it proved to contain no suggestion of the "equitable treatment" or parity.

Even this the Bureau of the Budget declined to approve. An ambassador, minister or consul-general who retired since November 14, 1946, receives an annuity-increase of $2,100 to $2,700. But the thought of giving the like to an enfeebled 80-year-old former ambassador who retired the day before that date creates consternation in those hardy budget breasts. The bureau's amended bill (the one now waiting congressional action) offers him the stupendous largess of a pension-raise of 25 per cent or $420, whichever is lower! POST WHEELER.

Collective Action

The war between the Arabs and the Jews has been ended through negotiations. We regret that such a war took place. Nevertheless one does not hear anyone saying that it would have been better if military alliances had brought in other nations and enlarged the area of the conflict.

Why then are we so eager to rush into the North Atlantic Pact, which will make any attack on any signatory nation a possible occasion for military action by others?

Uncooperative Blossoms

I wonder every year why we break our hearts and lose our tempers because of the cherry blossoms. They are lovely but unpredictable. And instead of contriving always to have barefoot girls dancing in a cold rain upon the fallen flowers, or a similar catastrophe, why don't we just leave it up to heaven, watch the blossoms, and on a clear bright day when the blossoms are out, ring all the bells in town and close every office and say "This is the day."

We cannot successfully commercialize on the cherry trees. They just don't enter into the spirit of the thing somehow. So why don't we let them have it their way? They do anyway.

Speed Trap

I noticed Bill Gold's column of March 25 entitled "Motorists Beware" concerning Traffic Officer E. L. Cave. I am a resident in Maryland, just across the District of Columbia line on Riggs rd., and I can confirm the operating methods of this officer.

The District line at this point is not marked nor is the District speed limit posted as on other arterial highways entering the District of Columbia. Any motorist or visitor has no warning whatsoever that he has entered a 25-mile-an-hour zone in the District of Columbia. Therefore Officer Cave has certainly been taking a very unfair advantage of motorists.

Taylor's Conviction

I am not a follower of Senator Taylor's political views—nor did I accept 100 per cent the President's civil rights program. However, if the sentence of 180 days and $50 fine given Senator Taylor for going into an entrance reserved for "colored only" is symbolic of Southern justice—possibly I am wrong on my stand about civil rights. Electoral Vote Reform

The April 4 letter from Mr. J. Harvie Williams criticizes the constitutional amendment which abolishes the office of presidential elector and provides for an automatic counting of electoral votes in direct proportion to the popular vote on the grounds that it is "based squarely on the principle of proportional representation" and would encourage, therefore, a "multiplicity of parties."

There is actually no resemblance at all between proportional representation as applied to the election of a group (such as a legislature or board of aldermen) and electing a single officeholder as proposed in the pending constitutional amendment. Electing a legislature by proportional representation gives a voice to so many shades of opinion that it often becomes impossible to find a common meeting ground on any course of action. We have seen this weaken government in many of the parliamentary democracies of Europe. But in the case of a single officeholder that reasoning does not apply. Even the cleverest surgeon cannot divide one man up—proportionally or otherwise—and expect him to live.

The reform we propose does not, of course, seek to do that. It seeks, as The Washington Post has often pointed out, simply to reflect more accurately the will of the people in counting the electoral votes. If we were electing three Presidents to hold office concurrently as a sort of modern triumvirate, Mr. Williams' criticism would have some validity. But the reform proposed in the pending constitutional amendment is no precedent for that sort of election at all.

The Brookings Institution very ably summarized the often heard and wholly unsound contention that this amendment would foster multiple parties. In a letter to me last year, it was said of this proposal that:

"It will practically remove the chance that small minority groups can attain and exercise great power over Presidents, presidential candidates, and political parties because they hold the balance of power in pivotal States. These minority groups will have no power beyond that justified by their number of voters in a presidential election."

The proposed amendment would strip splinter parties of their bargaining power (so evident in the 1948 elections, as for example, in New York) and would oblige them to seek popular support on the basis of their real appeal rather than on their ability to shift so-called "pivotal" States to one or the other of the major parties under the present "all-or-nothing system." This reform would, therefore, definitely discourage rather than encourage a multiplicity of splinter parties. Their future success cannot conceivably depend on the very slight advertising value which might accrue from their being credited with an unimportant number of electoral votes.

Children On Their Own

By Malvina Lindsay

Orphan Manufacture

HOMELESS children keep figuring in the news. A 6-year-old New York boy, en route to a foster home, runs away, hides in the subway, narrowly escapes death. A congressional committee hears that cast-off children are being harbored in public training schools, even occasionally in jails, for lack of better quarters. The male adolescent on the loose is again causing national concern.

Who are these children on their own? Where do they come from? How does it happen that in these prosperous "enlightened" days we still have the homeless waif?

The complacent citizen who thought orphans and their woes went out with old-time melodrama has an awakening ahead. True, things are not so bad as they once were. The number of full orphans in this country is relatively small. Epidemics that once wiped out families, including both parents, are under better control. Life spans of parents have been lengthened.

Then too the Oliver Twist type of orphan home or training school has disappeared. Cottage-type institutions, or, better still, foster homes offer many homeless children a semblance of normal life. And certainly this country has no bands of homeless waifs, such as have developed in countries devastated by war, as Europe, the Soviet Union and parts of Asia.

YET, WITH the child population here doubling in the last 12 years, more children without anchor are on the Nation's doorstep. Wartime stresses increased illegitimacy and broken homes, and exaggerated the entire orphan problem.

The home that simply goes to pieces contributes many a child ward to city or State. It is often a household that is unstable financially and morally. The family income can't meet inflated living costs. Poor housing—two families in small quarters, three or four persons to a room—and slum surroundings may contribute to the breakdown. The parents may have a weak inheritance of glands and stamina. They inevitably lack education for family living and parenthood. The adolescent son or daughter drifts away. The father or mother, fed up with it all, walks out. Or the family is forced to split up and farm out its members among relatives. The children eventually are dumped on the community.

In many home loss of wartime soldiers' allotments made income less steady. Job competition became harder. This especially pushed many teenage youths out of the labor market, often putting them on their communities. These frequently are among the youths landing in training schools or other institutions of correction. Sometimes they are minor offenders. Often they are merely vagrants. Many of them have been among the hordes that California—land of Canaan for the jobless—has deported.

IN 1947 one and a half million children from 14 through 17 dropped out of school. Figures for 1948 may be equally high. Unskilled, inexperienced, these youngsters have difficulty getting and holding jobs. Frequently they drift away from home in search of work, or to escape parental nagging, and become teen-age waifs.

Some program similar to the C.C.C. camps of the 1930's for such youths is repeatedly stressed by many authorities who deal with them. There should be places where teenagers adrift could live, get vocational training or resume their schooling. A few communities have done something about this in a small way by finding suitable couples who harbor groups of such youths. This is much less expensive than caring for them in training schools. It also keeps them in better company, gives them home surroundings.

For the younger homeless child the foster home is the answer. For institutional life, it has been found, puts a lasting blight on a child's personality. But there is a great shortage of foster homes, largely because of lack of money to recruit and support the type needed. No Federal funds are available for this except for a few temporary projects, and State and local appropriations are pitifully small. Another aid in meeting the homeless waif problem is the strengthening of welfare services for children. Now four out of five counties do not have the full services of a child welfare officer.

But these measures are only treating the symptoms. To get at the cause, family and social conditions need attention. Programs for better housing, for vocational training, family counseling, parent education (especially for those who may some day have to cope with 17-year-old sons) are some of the broader measures needed.

Double Taxation

Six Congressmen tell us via your issue of March 28 that the income tax doped out for D. C. is the most equitable of taxes and can't involve double taxation. In making out the return I failed to find even a percentage deduction allowed for the innumerable sneak-thief taxes hidden in the price of everything needed to keep body and soul together. They are a greater drain on the income of most of us than all other taxes combined and if they don't involve double taxation, there must be something wrong in my way of looking at it.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Righteous Man

THE GAGGLE of Foreign Ministers who so grandiosely sanctified the Atlantic Pact on Monday could have done worse than stop talking long enough to listen to Senator Forrest Donnell of Missouri. He and Mrs. Donnell were on hand in the Commerce Department Auditorium, the Senator bearing under his arm a small bale of papers proving the pact illegal, unconstitutional and ill-drafted.

The Senator might have given the assembled statesmen the answer to the question that is now secretly worrying every one of them. This question was once succintly put by Winston Churchill: "Will America stay the course?" In short, will the United States, having assumed the position of world leadership, agree to carry the attendant heavy burdens and pay the resulting heavy bills?

The man who bears within himself the answer to this momentous inquiry is far from representative of the Senate isolationists. The hard remaining core of senatorial isolationism is largely composed of portly, expensively tailored men with a strong tendency to sound, even in private conversation, like a broadcast news release of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The great majority of these men come from States, both Northern and Southern, where the local political organizations are rigidly controlled by the most reactionary big business groups. Some wear demagogues' disguises. But most of them look very much like what they in fact are—delegates of power and mining and transportation and great manufacturing companies—and not at all like what they are officially supposed to be—representatives of the amorphous but majestic group that the late Sam Blythe once called "the great rancid American people."

NOT SO Senator Donnell. He also looks like what he in fact is, from the stern frames of his eyeglasses to the somehow virtuous lines of his neat blue suit. But what Senator Donnell is goes back to the dusty, elm-shaded, lilac-scented streets of the little towns of Quitman and Maryville, in Nodaway County, Mo., where he was born and brought up.

It includes a father born in the Civil War, who left North Carolina in the early 80's, set up a little store, made a small town success, and sent his son to college and law school. It includes also an old-fashioned, modestly prosperous St. Louis law practice, family life in one of the less ostentatious suburbs, and Sunday instruction of the Grace Methodist Church men's Bible class.

This thing that Donnell is made him Governor and then Senator, because Missouri's rural counties recognized him instantly as one of their own. And where the burden for his colleagues' song is "taxes," this thing that Donnell is makes him talk about "righteousness" and "the Constitution."

His life has been passed among his law books, and the letter of the law is very sacred to him. Thus he opposed the League of Nations, as a dubious contract, but worked for the World Court which he evidently saw as a sort of Supreme Court of the world. In the same way, he has supported ERP, understanding the justice and advantage of promoting the recovery of the Western world. But the Atlantic Pact looks like another dubious contract, and he is getting ready to oppose it, too.

IF IT WERE not for the Senator's charming courtesy and transparant sincerity, the cynic might incline to mock his approach to this grim issue of power politics. He will talk for half an hour to prove what is obvious, that the pact is a binding commitment to fight an aggressor. He will denounce its loose language as though it were a contract of sale. He will even cite Supreme Court precedents ("Take the Cherokee Tobacco Case, 11 Wallace 616 or 78 U. S. 590, in which Mr. Justice Swain held . . . ").

But what he will not voluntarily do is discuss the terrible problems of security and survival in the modern world, which make the Atlantic Pact necessary. The nature of aggressive dictatorship, the safety that comes with preparedness, the need to unite in defense—all these are points you find he has hardly considered. Why should he have? His life has been happy, secure and remote from danger in a way no European can imagine. Yet when he is asked about these points, he does consider them, quite seriously, and you have the feeling that if he studied them a little longer, he might change his view.

Of course, in the unlikely event of a talk between the Foreign Ministers and Senator Donnell, the diplomats would end by asking, "But where is our answer here? What do we learn from this high-minded, rather old-fashioned gentleman?"

Yet they would be wrong. For Donnell is a symbol of the millions of Americans who want to do the wise thing, yet do not know the facts because we as a Nation were remote and secure for so long. If the facts can be brought home to these Americans, they will act bravely and disinterestedly. And thus the question about American foreign policy, the question whether America will "stay the course," is essentially a question of leadership. If we have good leadership, the big business isolationists will not know what hit them.

the opportunity to advance medical research and training."

Dr. Topping denounced the "sensational literature of some newspapers and magazines that has stymied medical research in the District."

Father Paul A. McNally, S. J., dean of the Georgetown Medical School, and Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, also criticized some antivivisectionists as "fanatics who know nothing about what is being done in these schools" in using animals.

Several doctors listed medical advances made through research on animals, commenting that it is better to try new surgical procedures on dogs than on a child.

Dr. James P. Leake, member of the District Board of Medical Licensure, explained his interest in the bill. "I have nine grandchildren, and am expecting a tenth. I don't want to tie the hands of these men who are taking care of my family by hindering their research."

Other members of the delegation were Dr. Errett C. Albritton and Dr. Joseph A. Roe, George Washington Medical School; Dr. Robert S. Jason and Dr. William F. Hewitt, jr., Howard Medical School; Dr. James A. Gannon, member of the Board of Education; J. Edgar Caswell, Health Department, and Dr. F. C. Fishback, District Medical Society.

The Commissioners registered disapproval earlier this year of a bill to prohibit experiments on living dogs in the District as placing serious obstacles in the path of science and medicine.

Deeds Recorder Transfer

The Recorder of Deeds would be transferred to the Department of Law and would no longer be appointed by the President under another change.

Senator J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.), was the only committee member present voting "no" in the voice vote. He explained that he was "merely registering his objection to certain specific features but indicated that he might reverse himself on the Senate floor.

Senator Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), only outspoken home rule opponent, was not present for yesterday's voting.

The Kefauver bill also calls for a seven-member elected Board of Education, reorganization of District agencies into 12 major departments and approval of home rule by referendum before it would become effective.

Moves in Moscow Hint New U. S. Envoy Is Named

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, April 5 (AP).—There were good indications here today a new United States Ambassador has been appointed to the USSR.

There has been no Ambassador since Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith left last Christmas for the United States.

(He has since been given command of the United States First Army, with headquarters in New York.)

First intimation of a new envoy came last week when the Embassy began a hurried inventory at Spasso House, the Moscow residence of the American Ambassador. This was followed by a thorough overhauling of Spasso.

Today a mechanic began conditioning two automobiles assigned to the Ambassador and unused since Smith left.

There is still no information as to who the new envoy will be, but rumors persist that he is likely to be some diplomat already in a foreign post.

Virginia Cities To Decide Policy In Phone Boost

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s request for rate increases came under the scrutiny of the Virginia League of Municipalities today.

Mayor Leslie T. Fox of Portsmouth, president of the league, said he would appoint a committee immediately to look into the company's petition and to formulate the league's policy toward the proposed increases.

At the same time he said he would confer with leaders of the League of Virginia Counties with the view of that organization also joining in a concerted fight against the increased rates.

Covington Board Mill Resumes Operations

Covington, Va., April 5 (AP).—The West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. announced today the resumption of operations in its No. 1 board mill here.

These operations were resumed yesterday after a week's shutdown. Company officials said the mill will close down again for one week, beginning April 11, because of a lack of orders.

Three other operations closed last week also resumed normal schedules yesterday, the company said.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Stalling On Gruening's Confirmation

GIVEN the fumbling of the party in power and the obstruction for obstruction's sake of the party out of power, the wonder that anything gets done. And the answer, all too often, is that it doesn't.

Childs

A minor but nevertheless significant example concerns Alaska. To most Americans, Alaska is a faraway place full of scenery and Eskimos. If they think of it at all, it is as a place that might be nice to go to for a vacation some day.

In reality, of course, Alaska has become one of the most important strategic areas in the world. It lies across a narrow strait from Soviet Siberia. A successful Pearl Harbor attack, followed by occupation of the Alaskan mainland, would be a disaster of a magnitude impossible to exaggerate.

FOR MANY weeks the Senate has delayed confirmation of Alaska's Gov. Ernest Gruening for a third term. As a Territory, Alaska has a Governor appointed by the Federal Government for a four-year term.

Gruening, according to most reports, has won wide popularity in Alaska. Those who know the Territory say that if Alaskans had the vote and Gruening were running for office, he would get a large majority. As evidence of his popularity, a number of prominent Alaskans flew to Washington to testify in his behalf.

But Gruening has offended certain powerful interests accustomed to thinking of Alaska as their own private province. Shipping, cannery and mining interests have for many years done just about as they pleased in the big, empty Territory.

Gruening has fought to develop the country—to bring in new industries and new people, antagonizing the group that wants things left as they are. They have sent their spokesmen to Washington to try to block his confirmation.

They did not like a Territorial tax applied to their operations. They resent Gruening's efforts to open new means of transportation to Alaska.

At the same time he has worked to expand the economy, the Governor has fought to get Army, Navy and Air Force to bolster Alaska's frail line of defense. It is Gruening's firm conviction, and this is what makes the story significant, that both phases of development are essential.

He believes, in other words, that military defenses alone will not secure the safety of Alaska so long as it is an empty province. The present white population is only about 100,000. A growing community must feel that Alaska is not merely a colony directed by absentee owners.

This is the essence of the argument of those who insist, on the larger scale, that military strength alone is not enough. The citizens of a growing, healthy democracy will feel that they have something to fight for if and when the challenge comes.

SENATOR HUGH BUTLER, one of the famous blocking backs of the Nebraska team of Wherry and Butler, is credited with delaying the Gruening nomination in committee. In the Eightieth Congress, when Butler was chairman of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, he had a lot to do with blocking statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

That is the larger issue in the confirmation quarrel. Gruening has established his residence in Alaska and if the Territory became a State he would in all probability be one of the two first Senators to be elected.

Statehood, it seems to me, is the only practical answer. This solution has its hazards. Some Senators, who might otherwise be sympathetic, shake their heads and say that with such a small population, the powerful interests would almost certainly send their own men to Washington.

But that is to confess that democracy will not work. The response to Gruening's constructive program in Alaska is a refutation of such pessimism. The Senate should let him get on with an important job.

Senators Alter Sales-Tax Bill and Senator Hunt, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, said the intent had been an increase of 50 cents over the present tax of 50 cents a barrel.

Other Features Intact

No changes were ordered in other main features of the House-approved measure, including (1) an increase of 15 cents in the present real-estate tax rate of $2 per $100; (2) a reduction from $10,000 to $5000 in the unincorporated business tax exemption, and (3) an increase in the District's personal income tax exemption from $1000 to $4000 for the taxpayer, effective on income after December 31, 1949.

Chairman McGrath took the lead in proposing the restaurant meal exemption, coupled with the liquor tax increase.

Mrs. Smith offered the medicine exemption plan, and Senator Mundt the cigarette tax plan.

District officials estimated the exempting of restaurant meals would cut the yield of the bill by some 1.3 million, and that this would be made up by the 50 per cent increase in liquor gallonage taxes and the 50-cent-per-barrel increase in beer taxes.

They estimated, too, that the exemption for all medicines would reduce the yield by about $400,000, and that this would be made up by the cigarette tax revision.

February Net Of Railroads Off Sharply

By S. Oliver Goodman

February net income of Class One railroads totaled an estimated five million dollars, down sharply from the 19 million in the same 1948 month.

This was reported yesterday by the Association of American Railroads, which added that railroad net income for the first two months this year approximated 17 million dollars against 37 million in the same 1948 period.

Severe winter weather in many parts of the country during January and February hampered freight movements.

The report for the first two months also showed gross receipts from operations down 4.1 per cent from 1948. Operating expenses declined 1.5 per cent.

In the 12 months ended February 28, the rate of return on railroad property investment averaged 4.3 per cent compared with a 3.32 per cent return during the 12 months ended February 29, 1948, according to the AAR.

EASING URGED: Further easing of consumer credit controls to stimulate electric appliance sales was advocated here yesterday by John W. Craig, vice president of Avco Manufacturing Corp. and general manager of its Crosley Division. He was one of the speakers at a luncheon meeting of eastern seaboard members of the National Retail Furniture Association at the Shoreham Hotel. If credit terms are eased and the industry puts "more of the 1941 brand of energy into the business," Craig said, major appliance sales volume this year "could approach within 5 per cent" the record high of 1948.

ELECTION: At its ninety-fourth annual meeting, the Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia reelected Robert E. Buckley and Oliver T. Carr to the board of directors for another three-year term. Policyholders were told that total admitted assets at end of 1948 were $392,865 and surplus aggregated $346,848.

PRICES: Industrial scrap prices tumbled $6 a ton yesterday in Pittsburgh district. Latest deal was purchase of 5000 tons of No. 2 dealers heavy melting at $25 a ton . . . Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Co. listed temporary price cuts to retailers ranging up to 20 per cent . . . Armstrong Cork Co. announced price reductions ranging from 3 to 9 per cent on its asphalt tile . . . St. Joseph Lead Co. cut the price of lead 1 cent a pound to 15.80 cents . . . Esso Standard Oil Co. raised gasoline prices ½-cent a gallon in 18 Eastern and Gulf seaboard States.

ODD LOTS: Business failures climbed to 216 in week ended March 31, largest total since May 21, 1942, Dun & Bradstreet reports . . . National Distillers Products Corp. registered with SEC a proposal to sell 40 million dollars in 25-year sinking fund debentures. . . . The Bell System has gained more than 10 million telephones in the 3½ years since the war, with 32 million phones in use at end of March . . . Stockholders of Bush Terminal Buildings Co. have rejected a management proposal to split common shares 20-for-1 . . . Puerto Rican sugar interests are worried about the 1949 crop, which willl leave an estimated 200,000 tons in surplus.

ACCEPTS TENDERS: Capital Airlines, Inc., announced yesterday that it has completed purchase of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines Corp. 15-year 3½ per cent convertible income debentures due September 1, 1960, for sinking-fund payment due May 1, 1949. On March 15 the company issued an invitation for tenders of the debentures by April 4. The company stated that it is accepting for purchase all such debentures tendered at a price less than $650 per $1,000 and rejecting any higher.

EARNINGS: Anaconda Wire & Cable Co. reported net income of $7,009,136 or $8.30 a common share for 1948, compared with $8,480,513 or $10.05 for 1947. Other earnings reports:

D. C. Old-Age '48 Payments Gained 19.8%

A 19.8 per cent increase in old-age and survivor insurance payments to Washingtonians was noted in 1948 over the previous year, figures released yesterday by the Washington field office of the Social Security Administration revealed.

About 8900 were receiving monthly payments totaling $176,000 as of last December 31. This was a 19 per cent increase over the $148,000 paid to 7600 persons at the same time in 1947.

Persons interested in obtaining knowledge of the insurance operations should call or write their local field office. The Washington office is at 1400 Pennsylvania av. nw.

Berserk Buffalo Bagged by Cattleman Jack Webb

"Out here at 101 Ranch," says Jack Webb, of Marland, Okla., "buffalo are still 'roaming.' So when a friend asks to park one with us, I'm not too surprised. Once in the corral, this buffalo went berserk, jumped the board fence, breaking a hole through which he bolted. This being a quiet neighborhood, I grabbed my Marlin .32 special and brought him down before he did any damage...but with regret."

An old rodeo man, Mr. Webb used Marlin firearms in the "101 Ranch Show" for many years. "I've got a beard like a buffalo's," he adds, "but Marlin Blades shave me fast and clean. Save me money, too." Single or Double Edge—12 for 25¢; Economy Packs 25 for 50¢, 60 for $1.

Truman Alone Can Resolve Split in Economic Council

...members ...gressional ...public state... prove a vic... ...ory for Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the council, who argues that the council "occupies a unique role of intimate and essentially confidential professional staff service to the President."

2. To instruct council members to testify. That would be a victory for Leon H. Keyserling, vice chairman, and John D. Clark, third member, who have felt that the council, to fulfill its functions, must undertake to explain the economic ideas of the council and the President to members of Congress. Such a decision would almost certainly result in Nourse's leaving the council.

3. To permit the council to go on as is. That would be a stalemate, which would prolong the friction and probably in the end cause a resignation. It would be a truce, not a peace.

THE CONFLICT revolves around whether Nourse is chairman in fact as well as title. So long as he refuses to testify before Congress and Keyserling and Clark do, they become the spokesmen for the council.

In February, at the invitation of Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, Keyserling and Clark testified in favor of the President's anti-inflation program. They emphasized the inflationary trends in the economy. Subsequently, in an interview with reporters, Nourse took issue with his colleagues, insisting we were in a period of disinflation. The different outlooks on the state of the economy emphasized the split within the council in philosophy and procedure.

The President, apparently, has not made up his mind on the council's role. Before presenting his state-of-the-Union message to Congress, he asked Nourse to serve as a coordinator of a Cabinet committee to pull together an economic program. Thus, he assigned the council a political role. At the same time, however, he has always respected Nourse's wish not to appear before congressional committees in support of Administration programs.

SENATOR O'MAHONEY feels that "Congress should have the benefit of the views of the council." He told me: "I look on the council as a professional economic body, and I'm sure there must be variations in views among the members. Economics is not an exact science."

When the council was first organized late in 1946, Keyserling and Clark accepted Nourse's preference for silence. But they chafed under the rule. They argued, who is better qualified than the President's economic advisers to present to Congress the economic problems that confront the country? They wanted to be on the battle line, fighting for their ideas.

The difference over role resulted in differences over the council's operations. At the outset, Nourse, Keyserling, and Clark conducted periodic staff conferences, Nourse acting as chairman. But gradually they were abandoned. Clark and Keyserling felt they were ineffectual. There was even a suggestion (which fortunately didn't get too far) that each council member have his individual staff. That would have divided the council into three research kingdoms, each with separate spheres of influence, and would have resulted in a low degree of liaison and rapport than now exists.

DISCORD in the council may be ascribed to growing pains. It's still less than three years old. The President has yet to define its relationship with himself or to Congress. And council members have been feeling their way in accord with respective wills, ambitions, and conceptions of the role Congress meant for them. They're not like newcomers in an old-line agency, following a well-trod path.

Inevitably, when three men serve as coequals in a new job, elbows get rubbed—and oftentimes the wrong way. And until the council finds itself, the Employment Act of 1946, which was designed to provide the President and Congress with economic insight so as to smooth out ups and downs in the economy, will be just another law on the statute books.

Truman Medical Plan Liked in East

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., April 5.——The Truman Administration's compulsory health insurance program finds its greatest support in the Eastern section of the United States, and among manual workers, and people living in the big cities.

The American Medical Association's counter proposal for voluntary health insurance gets greatest support in the Mid-West and South and among the professional and white collar classes, farmers and people living in small towns.

These divisions of opinion are shown in a coast-to-coast survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion designed to find out who is for and who is against the plan proposed by the Administration and the plan offered by the American Medical Association.

For the Nation as a whole, the institute has already reported that the weight of opinion is in favor of the A. M. A. plan, although the division of sentiment was found to be fairly close.

The results were 33 percent for the Truman compulsory health insurance program, 47 percent for the A. M. A. plan, with 7 percent favoring neither, and 13 percent expressing no opinion. The survey findings are subject to an average error of 4 percentage points in sampling surveys.

The difference in attitude according to occupation and by sections of the country are shown in the following table:

	Truman Plan	A.M.A. Plan	Neither	No Opin.
Occupation
Prof. & Bus.	26%	59%	9%	6%

Question Posed Choice

The test of sentiment was made on the following questions:

"Which of these two plans would you, yourself, prefer:

I

"The proposed plan of the Truman Administration which would require a deduction like social security from all salary checks (or wage envelopes) and which would provide all employed persons and their families with insurance for medical, dental, and hospital expenses; or

II

"The proposed plan of the American Medical Association which would encourage more people to take out medical and hospital insurance with organizations like the Blue Cross or private insurance companies, with the Government providing money to States and local communities to take care of poor and unemployed people who can't afford proper medical attention."

The vote by age, by size of community and by education shows the following differences of opinion:

Helicopter Does Loop In Unscheduled Stunt

Philadelphia (U.P.). — Something new in aerial acrobatics, the first known loop by a helicopter, has been disclosed by the Navy.

However, the perfect loop by a big, tandem-rotored Navy helicopter was unscheduled.

A veteran test pilot, Jim Ryan of Green Bay, Wis., was at the controls of the helicopter during test flights.

Diving the plane at high speed Ryan suddenly found the ship in vertical position, nose up, a precarious spot for a helicopter. To recover, Ryan had to make a split-second decision—to loop or not.

The plane came through the unusual strain with no structural failures.

Toothbrushes Needed

Minneapolis (U.P.).—The untapped market for toothbrushes in the United States apparently is almost unbounded. Dr. Edward L. Ball, Cincinnati dentist, told the Minnesota State dental convention here that only about 25 per cent of the Nation's population uses toothbrushes. He added that about 90 per cent of the 25 per cent fail to do a proper job of brushing.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning

That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and of color?

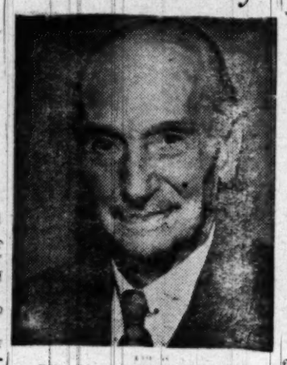
Every day every hour millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As rigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Library's Head For Half Century



DR. HERBERT PUTNAM

Dr. Putnam Marks 50th Anniversary

Fifty years ago yesterday Herbert Putnam, of 2025 O st. nw., took the oath of office as Librarian of Congress.

But pshaw, he says, drawing on his stubby pipe, in a quiet corner of the Cosmos Club. "The only thing of interest about me is my longevity."

Dr. Putnam celebrated his 87th birthday this past September 20. He still gets up at 5 a. m. during the winter, and as Librarian Emeritus—a position created by Congress upon his retirement in 1939—gets down to his office at the library bright and early.

Later in the day he can be found for a time at the Cosmos Club, perhaps playing a game of pool. A quiet man, he enjoys his clubs—in New York, the Century; in Boston, the Tavern.

He enjoys them almost as much as pottering about with his boats during the summer months at Cape Porpoise, near Kennebunkport, Me. When in Maine, he arises at 4 a. m.

Though he was born in New York, where his father founded a publishing house, he says he feels as though he has Maine blood because his father had been born in Maine. Certainly he has an appreciation of the rural and seafaring elements of the State.

"Increasingly, I am impressed with people who can do things with their hands," Dr. Putnam says. "I wasn't brought up that way, but I think it is significant, because people who are brought up with books aren't supposed to have that envy, but I do."

Interests Objective

As for himself, Dr. Putnam says, "the taste for books was indigenous with my father, but I am not scholarly, nor do I have any interest in setting down my reminiscences.

"People don't understand that, objective in today and tomorrow."

Of his 55 years of active association with libraries in Minneapolis, Boston and Washington before becoming Librarian Emeritus, years when he was achieving fame as probably the greatest librarian of his time, he says modestly, "I was primarily an administrator."

"Today," says Dr. Putnam, who was to be guest of honor at a luncheon given by Librarian of Congress Luther Evans, "I read books about the sea, and books with happy endings."

These Swift Couriers

St. Louis (U.P.).—Shirley Michel, a 23-year-old stenographer, was exasperated after walking through sleet and icy rain to mail a bundle of letters.

So exasperated, in fact, that she dropped her billfold into the mail box instead of the letters.

The carrier who picked up the mail found this note attached to the box:

"Postman—I mailed my billfold by mistake. Please leave it at the fountain pen counter of S. G. Adams."

New York-London Flight Completed In 12½ Hours

London, April 5 (U.P.).—Pan American Airlines' 71-ton "flying cocktail lounge," world's largest commercial land plane, landed here yesterday on a maiden trans-Atlantic flight marred by slight engine trouble between Newfoundland and Ireland.

The double-decker stratocruiser, carrying 59 persons, including a crew of 16, touched down at Heathrow Airport after a one hour and 20 minute flight from Shannon Airport in Ireland, last leg of the inaugural flight.

Flying time between New York and London was 12 hours, 25 minutes.

Savannah, Ga., April 5 (U.P.).—A blind Savannah municipal judge said he performed a marraige ceremony on Monday for Kathleen Winsor, author of "Forever Amber," and Arnold R. Krakower, New York attorney.

CARE Reaps Benefit

Troy, N. Y. (U.P.).—Brisk bidding, particularly for slide rules, marked a student-conducted auction of unclaimed lost articles at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute here and netted $100 for CARE packages for needy Europeans.

One on the Aisle—

The Seamy Side Of London Town

By Richard L. Coe

LIFE IN LONDON'S East End is never mild. Generally the polished West Enders or the respectable suburbanites are the figures of British films and the sordid, crowded, pitiable people of the rough East End seldom reach the screen.

But now to the Little comes a yarn of one eventful day in the quarter of the poor, the struggling and the listless. This is called "It Always Rains on Sunday," and in stoical, leisurely fashion it builds into a nicely exciting manhunt.

The emphasis is on setting and character. The dreary streets of early morning and evening are enlivened during the day by the pushcarts of an open-air market. The shops are junky, the amusements cheap. In such poor surroundings petty crime and desperate escapades are inevitable.

The people match their surroundings. The script is not sentimental about them, finding more flaws than virtues in these victims of hand-to-mouth living, but it still achieves an over-all compassion by presenting simply the sordid picture.

Central part of the story is a convict whose escape from Dartmoor has set the police web in action. This chap, acted by John McCallum, seeks help from the girl he was about to marry before getting locked up, Googie Withers. She has become a resigned but unhappy housewife, stepmother to two daughters who are just beginning to learn the pangs of love and poverty. Her husband is quiet, respectable and older than he.

And a "Spiv"

So Goodie hides her old flame while the police quietly comb the neighborhood, uncovering, on the way, a Saturday night theft of roller skates by a trio of minor thugs. We also meet a sleazy orchestra leader whose music shop drives him, his wife and baby a-living of a sort, a "spiv" of the black market set, oily and always primed for easy L-s-d's (Britishers' shorthand for pounds-shillings-pence).

How the convict finally is trapped down in the railway yards forms the climax of the film, an ending which has brought some excitement but little glamour to the residents of this turbulent, ragged area.

The playing is uniformly able, with Miss Withers bringing suspense and the longings of a saddened heart to the wife who risks her name to save a lover of the past. While the direction is leisurely and the story development complex, the overall impression is a faithful record of the rueful ways of life in a great city's seamiest corner.

RUMOR DEPT.: The projectionists of the Strand Theater, once the Academy of Music at 9th and F sts., have been working on a week-to-week basis for the past two months . . . The Notes family, which owns the theater, gave the men in the projection booth at the time of the initial two-week notice to understand that the theater has been "sold to New York stage interests" . . . The deal is reported to have been closed this week, but so far 84-year-old Marcus Notes and his two sons have been unavailable for comment . . . The 2000-seat house would require extensive cleaning and reconstruction for stage plays, several stores and a beer parlor having been built into the innards backstage . . . Don't count on anything, but the fact that the celluloid guardians have been given notice is interesting.

RESPITE—Escaped from Dartmoor, John McCallum finds a meal and rest with an old flame, Googie Withers, in the new British film now at the Little

Two Tiger Cubs Maul Trainer in New York Garden

New York, April 5 (AP).—Rudolph Mathies, 54, veteran circus trainer, escaped with minor injuries today when two 160-pound Bengal tiger cubs attacked and floored him in Madison Square Garden.

He was treated for scratches on the left arm and shoulder.

Mathies, who conducts the opening act in the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, was training seven tigers when the two younger ones leaped at him and mauled him. The others did not attack.

He will take part in Wednesday's circus opening, a circus spokesman said.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., APRIL 5.—Lest the pennant races commence without an expression from Bobo Newsom, this department has invited that profound thinker to state his views. It was not ncessary to twist the celebrated arm of Newsom, who talks at the drop of a hint somebody is listening.

"Wa-al," he said thoughtfully, "the way I see it is just like I saw it last year in the American League. Remember that I said last April that it would be a close race between Cleveland and Boston and Cleveland would win it. It couldn't be any closer than what did happen.

POVICH

"I got to go with Cleveland again. And I'll tell you something else—it won't be as close this year. Those Indians ought to breeze ahead of Boston, or be ashamed of themselves if they don't. They've got the best pitching, and those people who are saying Boston will outhit the Indians are crazy.

"Up there in Boston they'll learn some day that pitching is a part of the game, too. All that power is going to waste, and it's a crying shame. You know something? Old bobo would be a help to that club.

"I'M NOT GIVING the Yankees a look-in. Philadelphia will beat 'em out for third place. The Yankees wish they had the A's pitching, and their infield, too. Maybe I'm wrong and maybe the A's will even move up into second place, but they won't do worse than third. It's a pleasure to pitch for the A's, with Eddie Joost grabbing everything that's hit between second and third.

"I wouldn't want to be Casey Stengel, the way he's going to suffer this year. He'll be lucky if Joe DiMaggio plays 75 games, and nobody knows about Charley Keller. They're both limping. They're an old ball team that's cracking up, and they haven't come up with anything good in four years. They don't have a first baseman, and their only catcher who can hit, Yogi Berra, can't catch.

"And I don't see why Stengel is acting so proud about his pitching staff. After Raschi there ain't a solid man on it. A lot of guys should be good pitchers but ain't. Let me tell you something. Old Bobo would help that club."

AND THE AMERICAN LEAGUE'S second division? Newsom frowned at that question. "Why talk about the second division? Everybody knows what's going to happen there. Just lump 'em, Washington, the Browns, Tigers and White Sox, and you have the second division. They're not going to be any factor in the race on account of no pitching, unless they get smart and sign Bobo."

Reminded that there is a National League, Newsom agreed. "Sure, there is a National League and that could furnish the upset. I think the Braves will win it again, but I'll admit I'm not sure. The Pirates have the best manager in the business in Billy Meyer and they showed signs of coming to life last season.

"If the Braves do win it, it'll be close. There's no club in that league that could finish one-two in the American. The best thing that happened to the Braves this year was signing Pete Reiser from Brooklyn. Billy Southworth needed some more power. He couldn't think enough runs over the plate, even though he's a good manager.

"I'D LIKE THE PIRATES better if they were deeper in pitching. There's a club that old Bobo could help. I could mean the difference between the Pirates and the Braves, either starting or relieving.

"I can't go for the Cardinals. Funny thing about them, they are in the same fix as the Yankees—old team that is coming apart. It ain't like it used to be with the Cards when their farm system turned out all those players, and they must have needed the money to sell Murry Dickson.

"With more pitching, both the Cardinals and Brooklyn could make it a lot tougher on the Braves and Pirates, but they're going nowhere with what they got. Now, there's a couple of clubs old Bobo could help."

NBA Makes It Official...

1st 'Vacant' Sign in 21 Years Hung on Heavyweight Throne

The National Boxing Association ordered its version of the heavyweight title "officially vacated" for the first time in 21 years today, but named three boxers as logical contenders for the crown that Joe Louis gave up.

The NBA said it would recognize as champion the winner of the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott fight this summer, but in its quarter annual listings also designated veteran Lee Savold as a logical contender.

Otherwise, the only change in the eight weight categories was reinstating Willie Pep as featherweight champion and listing Sandy Saddler as the only logical contender.

The NBA had recognized a heavyweight champion continuously since July 12, 1930, when Max Schmeling claimed the title on a fourth round foul in a bout with Jack Sharkey. It had been vacant before that since July 23, 1928, when Gene Tunney retired after knocking out Tom Heeney.

Rinty Wins, Retains Title

Belfast, Northern Ireland, April 5 (AP).—Cockney Rinty Monaghan successfully defended his world flyweight boxing championship tonight by decisively defeating France's Maurice Sandeyron in a 15-round title fight.

A capacity crowd of 10,000 jammed King's Hall, Ulster's boxing palace, to watch the scrappy little fighter-crooner make good in his first title defense in his native city.

Referee Charlie Thomas of Wales didn't hesitate for a moment as he went over to Monaghan and raised his arm in token of victory.

Blood was still trickling down from a cut over Rinty's left eye as he burst out with his usual song, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." His hometown followers accompanied him all the way.

Monaghan, who was making the initial defense of the crown he won from Jackie Paterson here March 23, 1948, appeared to have won every round but the fourth and 13th. Monaghan weighed 110 to Sandeyron's 110¾.

Ben Civitello Boots Home Three More

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., April 5.—Bootin' Benny Civitello, failed to match his six straight winners of yesterday, but his followers had their innings today when he rode to three victories to bring his meeting's total to 18 for eight days.

However, Jockey Bobby Ray Mitchell from Adair, Okla., and a little-known rider in these parts, stole some of Benny's thunder. The 19-year-old boy took the lead with T. G. Benson's Hyead, an ancient mare, in the seventh race and stayed there.

Scattered backers in a crowd of 9618 rooted Hyead home and then hustled off to collect an across-the-board mutel of $108.40 to win, $35.80 to place and $12.80 to show for the longest pay-off of the season.

Civitello, as was the case yesterday, was not a ball of fire early in the program, but rallied to win with three of his seven mounts. After sitting out the first race, he was out of the money in the second aboard Watson Elliott's Queen Chatter.

Goes to Work in Third

Benny went to work in earnest in the third. He put up a strong finish aboard C. E. Nelson's Kingrosa and staved off A. Cataldi's Tom Ferris to win at a $6.20 mutuel.

Civitello was out of the pay circle in the fourth while riding A. H. McGahey's Ardent Miss, but he came back in the fifth, engineering a stretch drive by the Rarco Stable's Joe Olsan that was good for a $5.80 win mutuel.

In the Equipoise, the day's feature event, Benny rode Lady Alice, also owned by Rarco, and booted the filly home a neck in front of R. Orme's Great Shuffle and another 2 lengths in advance of J. Rittiner's Arnie.

Lady Alice, a $5 favorite, was clocked in 1:44 4/5 for the mile and 70 yards over a fast track and under threatening skies.

In the 10-year-old Hyead's race, the seventh, Civitello's mount, Astral, was heavily backed but the veteran distance horse had to be satisfied with third money behind the old mare and Gene Chance.

Tricky Whip

Benny also was out of the money in the eighth race with V. Cella's Rio Reigh, victory going to Isadore Bieber's Wassermatter, a first-time-starting 4-year-old which paid $25.20.

Civitello's ride on Lady Alice was a masterpiece. He had the filly off well and when Riskabule flattered her backers by matching strides with Lad Alice, Benny took his mount under strong restraint.

It was not until Riskabule began to throw in the sponge that Civitello unloosened some of the wraps on Lady Alice. She responded by retaking the lead at the far turn.

Despite the fact that Great Shuffle, Pictoric and Arnie began to gang up on the pacemaker entering the stretch, Benny continued to rate her until straightened out toward home.

Great Shuffle, coming up on the outside appeared ready to overtake Lady Alice. However, Civitello still unruffled sat tight, waving his whip in the favorite's right eye, and in addition, scaring off Great Shuffle who hung after getting within a head margin of the lead.

Civitello's whip flicking, a saddle trick that's not exactly kosher but is rarely noticed by officials would have done credit to a saddle journeyman.

House Bills Would Solve Baseball's Problems

By The Associated Press

Baseball's famous "reserve clause"—once more under fire in the courts—may be legalized by Congress.

Legislation to exempt baseball and other organized sports from prosecution under the Sherman Antitrust Laws was introduced in the House yesterday.

Representative Herlong (D., Fla.), former president of the Florida State Baseball League, and Representative Mills (D., Ark.) are sponsoring the measure.

Chairman Crosser (D., Ohio) of the House Commerce Committee called for prompt hearings—probably starting April 14, before the major league baseball season begins. Top sports officials and stars would testify.

Herlong and Mills told reporters their action was prompted by pending Federal court suits seeking to hold the "reserve clause" invalid on the grounds that baseball is an interstate commerce activity.

TV, Radio New Factors

Baseball officials have said that invalidation of this clause would ruin baseball. In effect, it binds a player to remain with the club with which he has contracted unless the club releases him or gives a club prior rights to a player's service from season to season.

As long ago as 1922, the United States Supreme Court held that baseball was not trade nor commerce within the scope of the Federal antitrust laws.

But that was in the days before radio and television broadcasting became big factors in staging sports contests.

Federal Court suits now pending in New York contend that such broadcasting of baseball games has changed the picture—that in effect baseball now comes within the scope of interstate commerce.

Broadcast Issue Covered

In proposing the exemption of sports from the antitrust laws, the Herlong - Mills bill specifically clarifies the broadcasting issue. It says:

"No organized professional sports enterprise shall by reason of radio or television broadcasts of sports exhibitions, or by reason of other activities related to the conduct of such enterprise, be held to be engaged in trade or commerce among the several States, Territories, and the District of Columbia, or with foreign nations, or in activities affecting such trade or commerce, within the meaning of any law of the United States relating to unlawful restraints and monopolies or to combinations, contracts, or agreements in restraint of trade or commerce."

Passage of the bill by Congress would have no effect on the two suits now pending in the courts against baseball. These suits were brought by Danny Gardella, former New York Giants player, in one case, and by Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former St. Louis Cardinals players, in another.

All three were banned from organized baseball for specified periods because they played in the Mexican Baseball League. The Gardela and the Lanier-Martin cases differ slightly.

Gardella, who is asking for $300,000 damages and reinstatement, was not under contract at the time he left for Mexico. Martin and Lanier, who seek $2,500,000 damages and reinstatement, were under contract when they left the Cardinals.

The suits contend baseball is in interstate commerce and is an illegal monopoly under the anti-trust laws because of use of the "reserve clause" in contracts.

Lanier, Martin Will Get Hearing Soon

New York, April 5 (U.P.).—Max Lanier and Fred Martin, denied a Federal District Court injunction that would reinstate them to the old jobs in organized baseball, today were granted an early hearing on their appeal by the Circuit Court of Appeals.

An early date for the appeal hearing, probably during the first week in May, was granted the players after organized baseball, through its Attorney Mark Hughes, said it had no objection to putting the hearing on the Appelate Court's calendar as soon as possible.

Boston, Mass., April 5.—Washington's seven-man delegation went the way of all flesh here tonight when Thurman Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., knocked out heavyweight Eddie Grant in 1:48 of the first round in the quarterfinals of the sixty-first National Amateur Boxing Championship.

Prior to Grant's demise, Light-heavyweight Hezekiah Williams had yielded a three-round decision to Delopez "King" Oliver, the Navy's gift to the Hawiian delegation, in quarterfinal competition. Jimmy Caraway, the bantamweight hope, dropped a decision to Walter Rawles of Norfolk, Va.; Dave Jacobs was knocked out in the third round of the 126-pound competition by Russ Tague of Davenport, Iowa, and Welterweight Connie Wilkins lost a split decision to Robin Hood of Indianapolis.

This afternoon Grant walked into the quarterfinals when Leo Sewell of Fort Bragg, N. C., came up with a stomach cramp between the second and third rounds, and had to quit. He found Wilson another proposition. The towering Missourian nailed Eddie with a left hook and a right cross at the minute mark of the first round and Grant took a nine count. Seconds later another barrage of lefts and rights dropped Grant for keeps.

William breezed through the third round meeting with Boston's lightheavy hope, John Boutilier, but met a more experienced, stronger opponent in Oliver. Oliver had Williams' nose bleeding in the first round and in the second the blood was trickling from Zeek's mouth. Oliver staggered him on three different occasions. Williams tried to rally for a comeback in the third round but Oliver was too smart to be caught napping.

Wilkins drew a third round bye to enter the quarterfinals only to run into the boy with the amusing name, Hood at no time hurt Wilkins. But by the same token Wilkins couldn't hurt Hood. For both boys were swinging wild and trading bolo punches that rarely connected.

Caps Convinced Something Must Be Done About Mikan

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Minneapolis, Minn., April 5.—The Washington Caps decided today they'd have to triple up if they are to catch up with Mikanapolis Lakers in the second game of basketball's World Series tomorrow night.

One down as the result of the terrific 42-point performance by George Mikan Monday, the Caps will employ three men against the 6-foot 11-inch scoring machine tomorrow.

It's the same defense they cooked up for Mikan in Washington March 16 and it proved eminently successful on that occasion. Mikan was held to 24 points, four points below his season's average and 10 points under the mark he's made in six games against the Caps this season, including last night's 88-84 playoff game.

"There are no two ways about it," explained Coach Red Auerbach, "it takes at least three guys to stop Mikan and that's what we're going to do. We used it against him last night in the fourth quarter, but it was too late then. If he goes crazy against us tomorrow, he'll have to do it against three men."

Actually, the Caps will play a modified zone defense against Mikan, but since zone defenses are illegal in the Basketball Association of America, the maneuver is called a shifting man-to-man defense.

It's designed to keep Mikan from getting the ball. The Caps quite logically figure that Mikan can't hook in a basket without the ball and they're hell-bent on seeing that he doesn't get it.

Kleggie Hermsen, 6-foot-8, will play in back of Pivot-man Mikan, blocking him out (he hopes) from the basket. On the left side of the bespectacled hot-shot from Chicago will be Jack Nichols, 6 feet-6, while Bones McKinney, who matches Nichols inch for inch, will be on his right.

Of course, Nichols and McKinney won't leave their respective men entirely unguarded. They'll simply shift and sag, depending on which side of the court the Lakers are trying to pass the ball to Mikan. It's their jobs to bat away or intercept the passes intended for Mikan.

During the regular season, the Caps whipped the Lakers three out of five times. Mikan averaged 28 points for those three performances. The Caps are certain if they can restrict him to that somewhat respectable figure they'll be all square with the Lakers when the battle resumes in Washington Friday night.

The Laker attack is built around Mikan, which is understandable. His tremendous height leaves him only 3 feet 1 inch away from the 10-foot high basket. He scored almost 50 per cent of the points the Lakers registered this season.

As a result of their whirlwind finish which took them from a deficit ranging from 10-12 points up to a tie with Minneapolis late in the game, the odds against the Caps winning tomorrow's game were reduced considerably today. They're only 3½ point underdogs now as against 9 last night.

REBOUNDS — Freddie Scolari seems fit once more. He popped in 20 points last night, his best performance since he fractured the trigger finger on his shooting hand a month ago. Bob Feerick will be in uniform, but his value is debatable. He tried out his lame knee against New York last Saturday, but Bill Van Breda Kolff drove by him three straight times, which should have convinced Bob that he won't be of any help any more this particular season . . . A busload of fans are coming from Virginia, Minn., 200 miles distant, to pay tribute to Johnny Norlander, a native son, tomorrow.

Giants Whip Indians, 8 to 4

Lubbock, Tex., April 5 (AP).—The New York Giants got to Frank Papish for five runs in the first three innings to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 8-4, for their fifth straight exhibition victory today.

Doubles by Johnny Mize and Bobby Thompson figured in a pair of Giant runs in the first frame and Robert Hofman and Sid Gordon contributed two-baggers that resulted in another pair of scores in the second inning.

Thompson and Gordon each contributed a home run to the 14-hit New York attack.

Home runs by Joe Gordon and Mickey Vernon featured Cleveland's three-run assault in the fourth, although Ray Poat, former Indian Hurler, finished the inning for the Giants.

Nats Left With Only 2 Starting Pitchers

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 5.—Operation Appendix threw the Nats for a new loss today—the loss of starting Pitcher Walter Masterson for at least a month.

Two hours after he complained that his appendix was kicking up a fuss during a workout at Tinker Field, Masterson was on the operating table at Orange Memorial Hospital. Tonight he was resting comfortably with the surgery called a success.

Physicians announced that Masterson would be on his feet again within four days, but Trainer Doc Lentz fixed "one month" as the earliest date at which Masterson could attempt to pitch again.

Masterson will remain at Orlando for another week, and fly back to Washington to recuperate, Manager Joe Kuhel announced.

A Costly Loss

To Kuhel and the club's pitching plans, it was a new blow to a pitching staff already thin in starters. The 28-year-old Masterson had been impressive in the exhibition games and was counted as one of the solid members of the starting staff.

Masterson was cheerful as he was taken to the hospital. "I hope I'm as lucky as Johnny Allen of the Yankees," he said. "Allen lost his appendix early in the season and then won 15 straight."

The unavailability of Masterson until mid-May will cause Kuhel to juggle his staff at the outset. He now counts only Sid Hudson and Ray Scarborough as starting pitchers and must find three more starters to round out the pitching.

Masterson is out at a time when Kuhel is already dismissing Joe Haynes as a pitching factor until May 1. Haynes has been slow in recovering from his shoulder operation of last December and hasn't pitched an inning.

Knee Trouble, Too

The pitching situation isn't helped by the fact that both Milo Candini and Ed Klieman are suffering wrenched knees. Klieman is making fast progress toward recovery and may move into Masterson's role, but Candini has shown little improvement.

Trainer Lentz declared that Candini would make little progress until the Nats moved out of Florida, where the soft fields retard his kind of injury. He added that Masterson would be working out within a fortnight but, "all the conditioning he had down here now is lost and he must start over."

The new situation projects Mickey Haefner and Rookie Dick Welteroth into more important roles in Kuhel's pitching plans. Paul Calvert also moves up, but he and Forest Thompson are regarded chiefly as relievers. Klieman is the most apt to step out of a relief role into a starting job.

Orlando's heaviest rain of the year washed out today's scheduled game with Chattanooga at Tinker Field, but the day was not without excitement . . . Sheltered from the rain in their clubhouse, the Nats were given a staggering fright when lightning seared the telephone wires strung overhead, only 20 feet away . . . The flashes played around the clubhouse stove to make the thunderclap more grim . . . Kuhel today announced the outright release of utility man Lou Bevil, who led Orlando to a pennant as playing manager last year . . . He explained that Bevil was being released in time to entertain offers from other clubs . . . Tomorrow the Nats play Kansas City here.

'Thick Carpets' Slow Rolls

Masters Will Be Putters' Test

AUGUSTA, GA., APRIL 5 (AP). The always long Augusta National golf course will be playing longer still for this Masters tournament.

All of the veterans are talking about the stand of grass on fairways. Some have never seen such thick carpets. They complain they aren't getting long rolls after tee shots and their approaches are going dead on aprons of greens instead of trickling up. Once they hit a green, they have not hit hard all over again to get across the heavy rye grass to the pin.

The course was closed throughout this morning and most of the afternoon because of intermittent rains. As a result not a practice shot was hit.

For the golfers, unaccustomed to Dixie's lush and slow winter greens anyhow, the rains were posing the problem of determining how hard to hit the ball.

They have only until Thursday to learn. That's when the 72-hole, four-day golf classic for champions gets under way.

The giant practice putting surface at the 6900-yard National is the busiest spot on the course. Such a putting star as Bobby Locke, who has been in this country three weeks after returning from his South African home, has spent about 12 hours on the practice green this week.

Sammy Snead, hitting as long a drive as any golfer ever entered in a Masters but who isn't famous for putting ability, has nearly conquered the trickery of the National's greens.

For one of the few times in his professional life Snead is putting well, and that makes him one of the choice picks to win. His tee-to-green game is almost as good here as it is everywhere else because he hits a ball so far he doesn't have to count too much on a roll.

Ed Dudley, home-professional at the National, knows this course better than any other player. The former PGA president says, "green work will win this year."

Two other favorites of the gallery and players, Byron Nelson and Cary Middlecoff, agree with Dudley.

Middlecoff knows he's a pre-tournament favorite and maybe that's why he declines to name his choice. He answers only, "the putter will win."

Cary quit a Memphis dentist chair to see if he could win on the professional circuit and quickly found he could. He has the best practice round of the week, a five-under-par 67.

The only other two severe par shatterings have been 68's by Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi.

The winner then has to meet Penn State's John Benglian in the quarter-final round. In the same class, Virginia's Allen Hollingsworth goes against Harold Brown, Minnesota.

Grover Masterson, Virginia 135-pounder, is paired with Paul Kostopoulos, Maryland. In other bouts, all quarter-finals, Basil Miragliotta, Virginia 145-pounder, opposes James McCarthy, Superior (Wis.) Teachers; Maryland's Ed Rieder, 155, faces Wisconsin's Dwaine Dickinson; Virginia's Joe Miragliotta, 155, fights Wayne Fontes, San Jose State.

Krug Proposes Brentwood Stadium

Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug yesterday announced that he would seek funds for the construction of a minor sports stadium in Brentwood Park.

A model of the 6500-seat stadium which would be lighted for night events was displayed in Krug's office to a group of Government officials and representatives of amateur sports associations.

Krug pointed out the lack of such a facility now for amateur softball, baseball, boxing and field events. He asked for support of the plan to get Congress to appropriate the estimated $94,750 needed for its construction.

The stadium would be located near New York ave., extended, and Penn st., ne., and also would serve as an athletic field for the proposed Armstrong Vocational High School.

'Poor Man's Sport'

Hybla Valley Speedway will be the scene of the Easter inaugural of a 100-lap roadster race, described enthusiastically as the "poor man's sport." Doc Benson, manager of Hybla (on Route 1, 10 miles south of Washington), cautions that these cars shouldn't be confused with "hot rods."

Cyclists Race

Motorcycle racing will be presented at 2 p.m., Sunday, at South Hampton Raceway, 17 miles from the District line on Indian Head road. Competition between American and British motors is expected to be keen after the beating taken by American motors in the recent 200-mile classic in Florida.

Colonials Win Out in 10th Inning

Joe Famulette's sharp single to right with two out in the tenth inning drove Frank Cavallo across the plate and gave George Washington University a 5-4 victory over Michigan yesterday on the West Ellipse.

It was the second straight win for the Colonials and the first loss in four starts for the defending Big Nine champions.

Trailing, 3-2, going into the ninth, Michigan staged a two-run rally on three singles and a sacrifice. G. W. tied it up again at 4-all in the last of the ninth on four walks, the last to Chet Pietras.

With one out in the last of the tenth, Cavallo drew a walk, and with two out and Famulette at the plate, Frankie stole second. Famulette then struck the deciding blow.

Montgomery Council Maps Legislation

Studies being made by the Montgomery County Council in preparation for its first annual May legislative session were made public yesterday at a meeting of the council in Rockville.

President Frederic P. Lee said that among subjects being discussed with a view to possible legislation are:

Extension of the Bethesda and Silver Spring suburban district to include areas where residents are obtaining services without paying the 30-cent suburban tax; creation of a department of safety to include fire and police protection supervision.

Also creation of a department of permits and inspections for issuing building permits and enforcement of zoning laws; changing condemnation laws to permit the county to take property and settle damages later. Also a dual police system in Takoma Park, possibly providing for loan jurisdiction by town police with the county donating the lump sum to the town, and changes in the police retirement system.

2. Building of four-room additions to Ager Road, Suitland and District Heights Elementary Schools.

3. Construction of a two-room addition to Oxon Hill Elementary School.

4. Installation of a central heating plant and indoor toilet facilities at Lincoln Elementary School.

Dutch Spokesman Charges Bias on Indonesia Unit

Batavia, Java, April 5 (U.P.).—A Netherlands spokesman today accused some members of the United Nations Indonesian Commission of lack of neutrality in the Dtuch-Indonesian conflict.

The spokesman, who mentioned no names, said: "Among the personnel of the U. N. Indonesian Commission are some more interested in the Republic than solution of the Indonesian question."

His comment followed charges in the local Dutch press that W. G. Timperely of Australia, former chief secretary of the U. N. Good Offices Committee, had acted for the Republican government on his own initiative.

The Dutch newspapers claimed that a letter captured by Dutch forces showed Timperely had helped arrange for the formation of a Republican emigre government in India in case the Dutch attacked the Republic.

A spokesman for the U. N. Indonesian Commission declined comment on the report. Timperely has left U. N. employment.

Commission Finds Japan Has Excess Of Scrap Metals

Japan has more scrap metal than it can use in 5 or 6 years, a four-man study commission of the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

The commission told Secretary Charles Sawyer that Japan could spare a large portion of its stock pile of 5,012,000 tons which it has built up since the war. A large part of the scrap is being wasted it said, by inefficiency in Japan's "worn-out economy."

The commission recommended that the historic prewar flow of metals from this country to Japan be reversed and millions of tons shipped to the United States' scrap-hungry metal furnaces.

Virginia Board Revises School Building Rules

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—The State Department of Education announced today revisions in regulations governing approval of plans and specifications for school buildings and for long-range planning on careful educationa surveys.

The changes were approved by the State Board of Education at its meeting March 25 after it had received recommendations from G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction.

Some of the changes, which deal with the minimum requirements and standards for school buildings place upon the local division superintendent as well as the State Superintendent of Public Instruction the responsibility for approval of plans and specifications.

A new regulation was added providing that if the State superintendent "has serious doubt as to the advisability of approving the plans and specifications for a school building" he may require "a careful educational survey" of the county or city school system to determine its school building needs through a long-time planning program of not less than 10 years.

18 Elephants Go Berserk in Texas; Two Men Injured

Gonzales, Tex., April 5 (UP).—Eighteen circus elephants, frightened by cowboys firing pistols into the air, stampeded today, injuring two men and knocking down fences and part of a farm home.

The elephants belonged to the Bailey Brother's Circus, which has quarters here in the winter and owns a strip of woodland off the Guadalupe River.

The herd went berserk after Ben Davenport, circus owner, ordered trainers to take the elephants into the woodland to stage a fake stampede for a newsreel cameraman.

Two cowboys riding behind the herd began firing shots into the air, and the elephants, trumpeting wildly, rushed past the wooded section onto a highway.

Injured were Rex Williams, 26, head trainer, and Raymond Sreivogal, 30, a utility man. Both were treated for cuts and bruises.

It took two hours to round up the heard from a 2-square-mile area. They knocked down several fences and grazed a farmhouse, destroying the porch.

Funds Asked For Fairfax Dental Care

More than 4700 Fairfax County school children need dental treatment and about 1400 of them are unable to pay for it.

These estimates were made yesterday by a delegation of citizens who appeared before the county school board asking expenditure of a previously authorized $2500 appropriation for necessary dental care.

The $2500 is unused because school authorities have been unable to locate a school dentist, it was pointed out by Mrs. Donal Wilkins, president of the county Lay Health Association.

Another spokesman, Mrs. Arthur Gardiner, representing the county Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations, told the board that some of the children unable to pay are "in dire need." She said there are 1283 white children and 144 Negro children needing treatment.

After discussion on whether the responsibility rested with the welfare or health departments or with the school board, the board agreed to consider the request.

Several members disagreed on the issue of whether high school golf teams should compete with other schools on Sunday. The question was finally settled when the board voted against such participation by a 5-3 vote.

School Superintendent W. T. Woodson told the board that School Principals Howard R. Richardson, of Falls Church High, and Mrs. J. N. Howdershell, of Fairfax Elementary, were not going to reapply for the positions next year.

Five mothers from Wakefield Forest who complained that 39 primary grade youngsters attending Fairfax Elementary had to wait at school an hour before classes and an hour afterward because of school bus schedules, won authorization for another bus trip.

Banker Who Went South Is Arrested

Tampa, Fla., April 5 (U.P.).—Richard Henderson Crowe, a New York banker who came South a week ago with almost 1-million dollars of his employer's funds, agreed today to return home without a court fight.

Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Paul Pinkerton, he was calm, half-smiling. Pinkerton asked if he had any objection to being held under $100,000 bond and Crowe said: "It doesn't make any difference to me." Federal Judge William J. Barker signed a removal order a short time later. Crowe had already signed a waiver in Daytona Beach, permitting his return to New York.

He was sun-tanned and clad in sports clothes. He was arrested last night in a bar at Daytona Beach by FBI agents engaged in a Nation-wide hunt for him after the loss of $884,660 in cash and securities entrusted to him was reported by the National City Bank of New York.

The formal charge was interstate transporation of stolen money amounting to more than $5000.

Crowe told reporters, "I'm not answering any questions." He then read a newspaper comic page.

Crowe told the FBI that the $681,000 in negotiable bonds he took with him had been thrown into the Atlantic Ocean, and that he took them only "to make bank officials angry."

The FBI said a total of $131,153 was found at Daytona Beach, mailed back to relatives, or otherwise located.

During the week he was a fugitive, the chubby assistant branch bank manager had gone to some trouble to change his appearance from that broadcast to police authorities. His dark hair was crew-cut and sandy. He had shaved his temples well back to give an appearance of baldness.

Shows Ease at Hearing

Crowe was relaxed at the hearing as he answered informal questions from United States District Attorney Herbert S. Phillips.

"You're an intelligent man—you'll need a lawyer to resist removal to New York," Phillips said.

"I'll go back to New York," Crowe said, shrugging.

"Is this the first time you've been in trouble?"

Crowe nodded.

"How long had you thought about doing this?"

"About a day."

"Ever have any sickness that might have affected your mind?"

Crowe smiled and said, "No."

Abandoned Two Cars

Full details of Crowe's flight were not known. He said he went from New York to Florida by plane last week.

About $5000 went for two new automobiles, bought in Florida and almost immediately abandoned. FBI agents who captured him found $54,789.63 in a suitcase in his apartment at Daytona Beach. Other thousands he had mailed from Florida to his creditors.

Crowe, fat and 41, was arrested a week to the day after the National City Bank discovered the huge amount of cash and securities missing.

On Sunday, March 27, he left his luxurious Staten Island home, telling his wife he was going to Buffalo on business.

Tracing the two automobiles, agents and local police located Crowe and followed him to the bar where he was arrested.

Police in Daytona Beach said he lived comfortably while there, but was not on a spending spree. He dined in the better restaurants and was drinking Scotch when arrested. They knew of no one, man or woman, with whom he associated.

He had been living in Daytona Beach under the name of Richard Karr after going there Saturday from Jacksonville, the FBI said.

The theft was the largest ever reported in New York, and police said it was smoothly done. Crowe was said to have taken a suitcase to the bank on his last working day, and to have stayed two hours late to fill it from the vault.

3 Departments Slated For Job Fund Hikes in Bill Reported to House

The State, Justice and Commerce Departments would have funds to hire additional employes under a supply bill reported to the House yesterday by its Appropriations Committee.

State was allocated money for 282 additional departmental jobs here. Its Foreign Service would have 25 new jobs, but 101 of its members on duty here would be replaced. A substantial expansion would be made in State's International Information and Educational Activities, so-called Voice of America program.

At Justice, the big increase would be in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI was allocated $1,598,141 more by the committee than the Budget Bureau estimate.

The FBI would be able to add anywhere from 600 to 1300 additional employes, depending on allocations of funds from other agencies and the type of personnel hired. The Budget Bureau figures indicated a 900-man increase for the law enforcement agency, from 9664 to 10,587.

But in testifying before the committee, Director J. Edgar Hoover explained that the increase proposed by direct appropriations would provide for only 175 additional jobs, that funds to hire the remaining 700-odd in his budget may or may not come from other agencies.

The increase of $1,598,141 voted by the committee would allow the FBI to hire 425 people, plus the 175 the Budget approved, would make a minimum increase of 600—with the possibility of 700 more.

At Commerce, the big personnel increase would be in the Census Bureau, to prepare for and to take the general population census next year. On paper as approved by the committee, more than 9000 of those temporary jobs would be in this city.

But two weeks ago the Senate Appropriations Committee rejected a request by Census for funds to construct a new building at nearby Suitland, Md. Census needs this building to accommodate its proposed expanded staff, or else it will be forced to move the entire general census operation to another city. The House committee may act on the proposed Census building later this week.

Also, at Commerce there would be a reduction of about 40 employes in the Secretary's office, and a slash of 100 or more in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Export Control was given a token cut of $300,000, which, if approved, would mean a much smaller layoff in that agency than is now planned. A slash in the agency's deficiency appropriation threatens 150 jobs. But that planned reduction will now be reviewed in view of the committee's action on its full-year appropriation. It may be that not more than 50 employes will be laid off.

SUGGESTIONS: In reporting the three-department money bill, the committee recommended:

That State combine its public relations work under a single head; that it reduce the number of its publications, and that those it does publish be written in plain and simple language.

That one appropriation be made for Justice's Tax, Criminal, Claims, Lands and Customs divisions and special attorneys, and that employes in these offices be shifted when and where the work load is the heaviest. That the antitrust be given $100,000 more than was recommended by the Budget Bureau, funds for about 20 new people.

That reductions be made in Civil Aeronautics' aircraft records and airport development sections; that the chief communicator in CAA's Class 1 and 2 communicator stations be placed on watch assignments to save personnel and money, and that no reduction be made in Commerce's Office of Small Business.

TIME OFF to see the Army parade this afternoon can be given (1) those employes who are ordered to participate in it and (2) those employes in the downtown area of the parade. Top officials emphasize that it's mandatory to excuse only those employes who will be in the parade. Agencies have been advised that they "may" excuse those employes who can be spared to view the parade. In other words, it's up to the individual agencies to decide what to do.

Early Named Arlington's School Chief At $10,000

Kemp's Successor Served in Norfolk; Receives Acclaim Of Administrator

William A. Early, 43-year-old Virginia educator, will be Arlington County's new school superintendent, the school board announced yesterday.

Early has resigned as superintendent of Norfolk County (Va.) schools to take the Arlington job on July 1. His salary will be $10,000.

He replaces Fletcher Kemp, 61, veteran of nearly 32 years in the superintendent's post. Kemp now receives $9500 annually. The board said it had informed Kemp a year ago it did not expect to reappoint him this spring.

The incoming superintendent is

In a letter to the board, Early was described as a "good administrator," and "particularly good in public relations" by W. I. Willett, former Norfolk County superintendent and now school superintendent in Richmond.

In another recommendation, Dr. William A. Brown, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Southern Virginia said Early is "not tied up with any political faction.

The son of a Methodist minister, Early was born in Nelson County, Va. He received his AB degree from Emery and Henry College in Emery, Va., in 1927, his master degree in education from Duke University in 1941.

COL. FAY O. DICE, 50, and his wife, Myrtle, of 5002 Columbia Pike, Arlington, Va., were killed yesterday in an automobile crash near Spartanburg, S. C. Dice was part of a father-son pilot team in World War II. (Story on Page 2).

Arlington Aviation Pioneer Flew 'Hump' In Father-Son Team

Col. Fay O. Dice, 50, colorful Air Force officer, and his wife, Myrtle, of 5002 Columbia pike, Arlington, Va., were killed yesterday in an auto crash near Spartanburg, S. C.

Colonel Dice, part of a father-son pilot team in World War II combat, was returning home with Mrs. Dice after a vacation in Florida.

State highway patrolmen said the accident occurred during a rainstorm. The Dice car, they said, left a dual-lane highway, hit a telephone pole and skidded 129 feet on its side.

Colonel Dice was identified through papers found in his possession. He was dressed in civilian clothes and wearing coveralls. He had leave papers in his possession showing he was authorized 28 days' leave beginning March 10.

For the past year Colonel Dice had been chief of the publicity branch of the Joint Military Personnel Procurement Service Division at the Pentagon.

A veteran pilot, Colonel Dice had combat service during World War II in the China-Burma-India Theater. With his son, Capt. Fay O. Dice, jr., he flew 25 missons over the "Hump." The son is now stationed at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss.

Colonel Dice was a pioneer flier and had barnstormed in the early days of aviation. He began active duty as an Army pilot in 1927. From 1942 to 1944, he served at Truax Air Force Base in Wisconsin.

A native of Kewanee, Ill., Colonel Dice has no known relatives living in this area. His mother lives in Kewanee.

Central Labor Union Picks Parley Delegates

The Washington Central Labor Union, local council of AFL unions, yesterday named three delegates to the 1949 convention of the Maryland-D. C. Federation of Labor, to be held in Baltimore May 23-26. The delgates are Eugene R. Hubbard, of the milk drivers; Frank W. Lee, of the steamfitters, and Edgar J. Appel, of the carpenters.

The Central Labor Union also announced it will oppose the proposed sales tax for the District and urge instead an increased Federal payment to the local government.

Suits Pile Up Against Fay On 'Phones

Woman Files Action For $10,000 Trying To Halt Removal; Others Disconnected

The Government ran into more trouble yesterday in its effort to disconnect 324 telephones allegedly being used in violation of the District gambling laws.

With the special gambling grand jury recessed for the fourth consecutive day, attention was focused on these developments:

1. United States Attorney George Morris Fay and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. were sued for $10,000 by a woman whose telephone was scheduled for removal this morning.

2. Fay himself was served with a notice to give a deposition Friday on the evidence by which he ordered the removal of another telephone.

3. Seven new civil actions were filed in District Court asking that Fay and the telephone company be restricted from removing 10 more telephones.

Marylanders Complain

4. Three more subscribers in Maryland filed complaints with the State Public Service Commission about proposed telephone disconnection.

A spokesman for the telephone company said that some telephones were disconnected yesterday, but of the 300 subscribers whose telephones Fay originally tried to have removed, as least 97 will keep their phones until April 11, when the legality of telephone removal will be decided in District Court.

More telephones will be removed today, with "only a few stragglers" slated for removal tomorrow. Neither Fay's office nor the telephone company would reveal how many telephones had been removed or how many removals had been held in abeyance.

The suit for $10,000 damages against Fay and the telephone company was filed by Josephine Mitchell, 1743 Pennsylvania ave. nw., who sought a temporary injunction and restraining order in addition to the damages. Her attorney said she had not asked Fay's office to delay removal of her phone, but Fay said the telephone will not be removed until the April 11 hearing. He would not comment on the case.

Fay Declines Comment

Fay also had no comment on the deposition which he was asked to give by James N. Hughes, counsel for Louis Lieberman, 1704 7th st. nw. In the notice of deposition filed in District Court and served on Fay, it was written that Lieberman 'will take the deposition of George Morris Fay . . . by oral examination for the purpose of discovery or as evidence or both" on Friday at 3 p. m.

In addition to Mrs. Mitchell, new civil actions asking for injunctions restraining Fay and the telephone company from removing phones were filed by Callie V. Dempsey, 1237 20th st. nw.; Evelyn B. and Andrew P. Gordon, 4653 Hayes st. se., two telephones; John E. Chappelle, trading as the S & S Variety Store, 415 Florida ave. nw.; Elizabeth M. Bandler, 1321 M st. nw.; Curtis M. Taylor, 2016 9th st. nw., and The Brass Rail, Inc., and Yvonne M. Simpkins, its president, of 1739 7th st. nw., and 2823 12th st. ne., respectively—four telephones.

The Brass Rail was the scene of a double shooting in January, 1948, which allegedly occurred as a result of a dispute over numbers lottery territory. Mrs. Simpkins is the wife of Roger "Whitetop" Simpkins. On the day of the eight mass gambling raids two weeks ago, Fay gave the Brass Rail shooting as an "instance of violence stemming from gambling."

The three telephone subscribers who filed complaints with the Maryland PSC yesterday were the estate of Charles F. Caldwell, 4231 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Md.; Acme Janitors Supplies, 5028 Rhode Island ave., Hyattsville, and Metro-Construction Co. of the same address.

Commissioners Weigh Parking Employe Protest

The District Commissioners are considering a protest by Oldest Inhabitants, Inc., against a District requirement that parking lot attendants state their criminal record and their color in order to be licensed.

William D. Nixon, president of the group, in a letter to the Commissioners, said it should be the duty of the employers to determine the reliability of parking lot attendants. He said if the Commissioners wished to retain the criminal record question, they should limit it to five or ten years.

On the question of color, Nixon wrote that insisting on designation of it is "unwarranted and un-American."

Camp Lee Contract Let

The Army said yesterday that a $1,559,000 contract had been awarded to the Virginia Engineering Co., Norfolk, Va., for construction of two barracks to provide housing for 900 men at Camp Lee, Va. Each barracks will have a mess hall.

Wilkins Beaten in Alexandria City Council Primary Upset

The Washing...

DAUGHTER WATCHES—Six-year-old Cathy Weber seems fascinated as mother, Mrs. Andrew Weber of 119 William st., gets her ballot from Chief Poll Judge Clarence Dyson in the Lee School. She was among the Alexandria residents who voted for city council members

Alexandria's Mayor William T. Wilkins, veteran city council member, lost the nomination for re-election yesterday in a surprising upset in the Democratic city council primary.

Wilkins

In what was a record turnout of voters for an Alexandria primary, Wilkins ran far behind in the field of 15 candidates seeking the seven Democratic nominations to the council.

A total of 5276 ballots was cast which topped the record of 4994 votes registered in the 1948 primary.

Elected to office were; Franklin P. Backus, jr., 3428; Leroy S. Bendheim, 3042; Albert A. Smoot, 2909; James M. Duncan, jr., 2877; Roy C. Bragg, 2761; Marshall J. Beverley, 2473; R. Samuel Luckett, 2373.

Others who ran and their total votes were Dorothy H. Kabler, 2246; Wilkins, 2176; John J. Ewald, 2108; Raymond A. Gallagher, 1756; Truman E. Carneale, 1554; James C. Crump, 1125; Ernest L. Mankin, 1011, and L. Trice Gravatte, jr., 978.

Wilkins, 71-year-old retired railroad official, who lives in the Hunting Terrace Apartments, has been a council member for 12 years and mayor for nine years. He was the only of six incumbent councilmen defeated in yesterday's primary.

Although five councilmen won nominations, some of them squeezed through narrowly in a primary which saw newcomers run first and fourth in the balloting.

The incumbents nominated were Bendheim, Beverley, Bragg, Luckett and Smoot.

The principal issue in the primary campaign was the cleavage in the city council which saw a majority of four—Beverley, Luckett, Smoot and Wilkins—fire City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto last March 8 and appoint Robert S. Marshall, jr., as his successor two days later.

Bendheim, Bragg and John W. Tulloch voted against the majority in both instances. Tulloch did not seek reelection.

The primary vote showed two of the majority running behind Bendheim, Bragg and the two newcomers.

The council majority had been supported by the Citizens Committee for Independent Government, but denounced by the Veterans Committee for Better Government and the Citizens Committee for Better Government.

Victory in yesterday's primary is considered akin to election. Barring unexpected strong Republican opposition, the Democratic primary winners will run as overwhelming favorites in the general election.

The seven winners will face two Republicans and at least one independent in the general election June 14.

Republican candidates, who were declared the nominees of their party without a contest, are Nathan J. Paulson and Clyde J. Verkerke. The independent is Martin E. Greene.

Backus, the man who led the entire field in the primary is 35 and lives at 202 W. Walnut st. He served four war years in the Navy and is a law partner of State Senator Andrew W. Clarke. He was the only candidate to take a stand against non-partisan municipal elections.

The other newcomer to the council is not unfamiliar to Alexandria citizens. He is the city's former fire chief. He resigned in 1947 because of differences with the city council. He is 51 and lives at 107 W. Walnut st.

Bendheim, 43, a lawyer, of 309 Mansion dr., is serving his first year on the city council. He opposed the city manager change on the grounds that no better man was available, and that the procedure was illegal. He is former chairman of the city school board and State commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Beverley, 37, of 3157 Martha Custis dr., is a bank official and former assistant national bank examiner. He is a Navy veteran. As a freshman member of the council he led the fight to change city managers.

Bragg, 48, of 206 W. Mount Ida ave., also is serving his first year as council member and opposed the city manager change for the same reasons that Bendheim did. He is a Marine veteran of World War II, is an attorney and operates a gasoline service station.

Luckett, a hardware merchant, is the only write-in candidate ever elected to the council. He has served since 1946. He is 58 and lives at 2504 King st.

Smoot, 44, of 410 Duke st., is the businessman son of a former mayor, and a descendant of one of Alexandria's founders.

Husband Gets 2 Children He Spirited Away

Flocks Given Care Of Girl, Boy Taken From Suing Mother

Karl W. Flocks, 33, Washington patent attorney, yesterday was awarded temporary custody of his two children, Margery Lynn, 8, and John Michael, 4, whom he had admitted spiriting from the care of his estranged wife in Florida 10 days ago.

In his request for custody, Flocks accused his wife, Lorraine Rakusin Flocks, 30, of 4832 Butterworth pl. nw. of taking the youngsters to Florida without his knowledge, and of teaching them to hate him.

Judge Letts stipulated the children's mother to be allowed "the widest possible latitude" in visiting them at her husband's home. He added that an interview with the youngsters in his chambers earlier, convinced him that "they see no difference between papa and mama. They say they love both of them."

Judge Is Puzzled

Before announcing his decision the judge said:

"I listened carefully to the testimony, thinking surely before this case was over someone would point out to me why these people are living apart. But nobody has even suggested a reason."

Mrs. Flocks, who called her husband "selfish, penurious and offensive" in testimony Monday admitted yesterday receiving a mink coat from her husband "as a token of appreciation" when she returned to him after their first separation in 1947.

In addition, she acknowledged under cross-examination by Attorney Louis Denit, that her husband put up the $10 000 capital for the Lorraine Dress Shop she began operating in January, 1948 "on 8th st."

Mrs. Flocks also admitted she had accompanied her husband on trips to California, Mexico, Florida and Europe since their marriage in 1937, though she said "all but two" of the trips were "paid for by clients."

Wife Seeking Divorce

Mrs. Flocks told the court that she left her husband in 1947 and again in 1948 because of her unhappy marital life over a period of six years. She filed suit for divorce last month in Florida.

She testified her husband's "cold, withdrawn" manner made her feel that she was "living with a stranger."

Mrs. Flocks told the court she left Washington for Florida with her two children in December 1948, because her husband "wouldn't let me live in peace" and "embarrassed me" by calling acquaintances and asking them not to take her out to dinner.

She admitted that the specific reason for her hurried departure late on the night of December 21 was "because I was trying to avoid being served by my husband on a partnership suit in the store . . . (the Lorraine Dress Shop)."

Also introduced as evidence yesterday was a letter dated July 10, 1948, which Mrs. Flocks admitted receiving from her husband after their last separation. It read in part: "Won't you think things over? . . . As the kids grow older they'll need both of us more and more. Let's let bygones be bygones . . . Please come back and let's be a happy family. I love you dearly. All my love, Karl."

Band Concert Tonight

The Silver Spring Boys Band, composed of 47 juvenile musicians and sponsored by a group of parents, will give its fourth annual public concert at 8 tonight in the Silver Spring Armory, Wayne ave. and Pershing dr. There will be no admission charge.

Ex-U. S. Tax Aide Indicted For Evasion

A former Internal Revenue Bureau auditor whose job was to check on returns sent in by income tax agents in the field yesterday was indicted on charges of evading about $4800 in personal income taxes.

A Federal grand jury indictment returned in Baltimore charged that the auditor, Kinsey H. Dillon, 55, of 4602 24th ave. Prince Georges County, filed evasive returns in 1945 and 1946 when he was employed by Internal Revenue.

The Government said Dillon listed his 1945 income at $3500 and paid $728 in taxes but that he actually made $5900 and should have paid $1377.

In 1946, the Government alleged he reported $4300 income and paid $763 in taxes when he had an actual income of $16,400 and should have paid $4933. Dillon was not available for comment last night.

Swank Stables Restaurant Padlocked by D. C. for Taxes

The swank Stables Restaurant, at Riverside dr. and E st. nw., has been padlocked by District tax officials for failure to pay up $2006 in delinquent personal property taxes.

Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson said the establishment, which operates on Federally owned land in a Federally owned building, was behind $2500 in taxes for 1944 to 1948, inclusive.

In July, Pearson said he arranged with Mrs. Jean Moran, owner, for installment payments, and about $500 was received under the arrangement, he stated.

When payments stopped, he ordered the place locked, and on Monday gave Mrs. Moran 10 days in which to liquidate the entire amount. If the $2006 is not received by the time limit the restaurant furnishings will be sold at auction to satisfy the tax debt.

Mrs. Moran offered to pay another $300 toward the total on Monday if the padlocking were held up, but Pearson said he had no legal authority to "sell time," and declined the offer, be explained.

The owner then sent a telegram to President Truman declaring:

"When the District of Columbia tax office can close a growing business that is grossing $3,000 weekly and gainfully employing 27 District residents because of a delinquent tax of $2000, is there no relief for people like myself who are trying to carry on in a democracy that apparently no longer exists?"

City Wants 6 Lawyers To End Legal Bottleneck

Overworked Staff Behind on District Business With Sales Tax Load Looming

A request for funds to hire six experienced attorneys for the District corporation counsel's office will be made by Commissioner Guy Mason after the Senate acts on the District revenue bill, he revealed last night.

The Commissioner said the city's legal office at present is a "terrible bottleneck," declaring he had waited "weeks and sometimes months" for opinions and proposed legislative bills he has requested there.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West attributed the lag to a manpower shortage.

"Members of my staff are working nights, Saturdays and Sundays without additional compensation trying to keep up with important matters," West declared. "Few have taken vacations. They are injuring their health at the present pace. We are absolutely snowed under."

Three of the six lawyers being requested are earmarked for sales-tax duties, in interpreting and enforcing the tax if Congress passes it. The other three would be assigned to aid the present staff.

The present plan calls for two lawyers of P-6 grade, $7100 to $8000 a year; two P-5, $5900 to $6800 a year, and two P-4, $4900 to $5900. Additional stenographers also will be requested to aid the new attorneys, West said.

The Corporation Counsel indicated that if the funds are allotted, he plans to promote several present assistant to the new posts "in order to make it worth while for the good fellows to stay here."

Area Publisher Is Indicted in Contest Fraud

A circulation contest sponsored by the weekly Suburban Citizen formerly published in Capitol Heights, Md., was "fixed" for a phony winner, the Government charged yesterday.

As a result, David R. Lee, publisher of the paper, whose address was listed only as Allegheny ave., Takoma Park, was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Baltimore on two counts of mail fraud.

According to the indictment, Lee ran a subscription contest during March and April, 1948, in which a grand prize of a new Kaiser car or $1900 was offered. There were also three lesser awards ranging from $500 for second prize to $100 for fourth.

The indictment charges that a "Richard Lowe" was announced as the car winner although he was in fact not even in the contest, thus depriving the next highest contestants of corresponding increases in their awards.

This, the Government contends, cheated Charlotte McG. Smith, John G. Wagner and Don Hockman, all of the Capitol Heights-Carmody Hills-Takoma Park area.

Wagner, a Naval Gun Factory employe, third-prize winner, said he was "satisfied" with the $200 he won.

Loftstrand Assails Lane, Lee As Fostering State Gambling

Maryland's Democratic administration was accused yesterday of "opening wide the doors of the State to organized gambling and vice."

The charge was a parting shot by Chairman Anders R. Lofstrand jr., of the all-Republican Montgomery County delegation, made when he returned from the 90-day session of the General Assembly in Annapolis on Monday.

He declared that Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., and his close friend and political ally, E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County Democratic leader, "have made Maryland another Nevada, where gambling is relied upon as one of the State's principal source of revenue."

"While opposing all attempts by the Montgomery delegation to bring home rule to the county, they have actively supported bills to increase the number of racing days at Laurel and Bowie and at the various harness racing tracks throughout the State," Lofstrand continued.

The administration also "sat idly by," he said, "and watched passage of laws legalizing slot machines in Prince Georges and Charles Counties and in North Beach, Md." Citizens in each of the three areas must first approve of the gambling devices at special elections. The machines already are legal in Anne Arundel, St. Marys and Calvert Counties.

Area News in Brief

D.C.'s Pent-Up Odor Proves Upsetting

Greater Washington got a strong sniff of itself yesterday. As a result, many persons felt indisposed.

Seems a mystery odor, described as ranging from burning cabbage to an alerted skunk, assaulted area nostrils, causing slight nausea and throat burnings.

Police and gas company officials were swamped with calls and sloughed in bewilderment until the Weather Bureau came up with an explanation—"temperature inversion."

Air near the ground grew warmer than the air higher up, an inversion of the normal. The colder upper air bottled up the lower warmer air. Strong smells of city life, enveloped in the lower air, were unable to escape into the upper atmosphere.

Most active among the odors which attacked olfactory nerves was sulphur dioxide and other wastes cast off from coal and oil furnaces, Diesel trucks and buses. About 10 a. m., the temperature inversion was dispelled by the warming rays of the sun and a strong wind. The situation began to develop at 10 p. m. Monday.

Leader Assails Jews Who Quit Religious Life

Hundreds of thousands of American Jews who have abandoned organized religion "have contributed to the paganization, the demoralization, of Jewish life, of American life itself," Dr. Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations said here last night.

Such loss of faith "is our real Achilles heel which the anti-Semite has not yet discovered," Eisendrath told the Washington Hebrew Congregation at a dinner in the Shoreham Hotel.

Warning that "no single congregation can do anything about it," Eisendrath urged support of the "mighty, dynamic missionary movement in the moral wastelands launched by the Union of American Hebrew congregations."

Perpetuation of the moral injunctions of the Old Testament through support of organized Judaism was urged by Dr. Nelson Glueck, archaeologist and president of the Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion, of Cincinnati and New York.

D. C. Postal Clerk Wins $28,000 in Air Quiz Prizes

John J. Noone, a 36-year-old Postoffice clerk, won $28,000 worth of prizes over the CBS-WTOP quiz show "Hit the Jackpot" last night, by identifying a secret saying as "All that meat and no potatoes."

Five friends financed a trip to New York for Noone, who lives at 4-G Southway, Greenbelt, Md., so that he would try for the prize. He is married and has two children.

Among the prizes won by Noone are a round trip to the North Pole by plane, a new car, $1,000 worth of shirts, the same amount of luggage, and of books, free laundry service for one year, a weekly dinner and dancing spree for one year, a home gymnasium, and a television set.

Battle Terms Virginia Setup 'Best by Test'

Charlottesville, Va., April 5 (AP).—Gubernatorial candidate John S. Battle put the "best by test" label on the present Democratic setup in Virginia and advised the voters:

"If it's good, it should be retained; if it's bad it should be thrown out."

The candidate of the party's organization forces was one of four gubernatorial hopefuls who appeared last night before a crowd of some 1500 at the University of Virginia's legal forum.

Reply to Miller

His remarks were a reply to the speech of Francis Pickens Miller, antiorganization candidate. Miller said the State has a political leadership "that neither understands democratic procedures nor knows how to use them in transacting business."

But Battle said there was nothing ominous in what Miller referred to as the "machine" in his declaration that a "new leadership was in order."

"Call it what you will—the organization or the machine," said Battle. "It is just the 'ins' as opposed to the 'outs.'"

Other Candidates Speak

Nick Prillaman of Martinsville and Remmie N. Arnold of Petersburg, two of the other candidates, expressed their views at the forum. But the fifth candidate, Horace H. Edwards of Richmond, was slightly ill and unable to attend.

Prillaman deplored what he pictured to be a lack of present day leadership in a State whose early history found great leaders in good supply.

Arnold said he was against any policy of dictation in government. He didn't believe anybody should dictate to the Governor, he said, nor should the Governor dictate to the General Assembly.

Mass Meeting To Pick Board Aspirant Voted

The Arlington Civic Federation last night indorsed a proposal to hold a mass meeting to select a candidate for the Arlington County Board for election next fall.

The resolution came from Harley Williams, chairman of the Federation's local government committee which he said had consulted five other county groups on the proposal.

In an earlier meeting, the Federation had urged Republicans and Democrats not to nominate a county board candidate. Since then, the Democrats have announced they will hold a primary and the Republicans are still on the fence.

Williams' proposal was attacked by delegates Mrs. Beulah Goss and Lawson Wimberly, who said it would drag the Federation into politics.

Tempers Rise Over Northeast Liquor Store

Tempers were still raw in the Michigan Park section of Washington yesterday as a new neighbor began moving into the premises at 1918 Allison st. ne.

Those who looked could see stocks of alcoholic potables arriving with regularity.

The issue of a liquor store in the neighborhood resulted in a tumultuous meeting of the Michigan Park Citizens Association Monday night.

So loud did the wrangling become that police were called to the Bunker Hill School, 14th st. and Michigan ave. ne., where the gathering was held. Police finally closed the meeting.

ABC Already Approved

The dispute centered on whether the association should rescind a previous motion not to oppose establishment of a liquor store in the neighborhood.

The disputants, however, apparently were unaware that the ABC Board had already decided the case and had issued a license to Browdy.

A spokesman for the board said a hearing was held March 25 on Browdy's application for transfer of his license. The application was approved last Saturday and the license issued Monday.

"There was quite a bit of protest," the ABC Board spokesman said, "but few of them were from persons living in the immediate vicinity of the Allison st. address."

Immediate Vicinity Defined

Within 600 feet of a location is the immediate vicinity, in the definition of the ABC Board.

Not one to measure distance by the yardstick was one angered opponent of the new liquor store who said:

"There hasn't been a liquor store within a mile of us—nor has there been a threat of one."

But while the oratorical storm shook the neighborhood school Monday night, Browdy was moving his stock of spirits to Allison st.

He hopes to be open for business this week.

Grant Suggests Decentralized U. S. Structure

A plan of "balanced decentralization" of Government offices in Washington is the most practical solution to problems of congestion, the American Society of Landscape Architects was told yesterday.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission, told that group's 50th anniversary session at the Shoreham Hotel that "no additional function of Government should be located in Washington that can be as well or better performed elsewhere."

He said it would relieve congestion in the central part of the city and would lessen danger to the Capital as "an inviting target" for political and psychological attack as well as "a sneak attack from the air."

On the same general subject Daniel C. Fahey, jr., director of the plans division of the National Security Resources Board's Office of Plans and Programs, asked for cooperation from industry.

Seward H. Mott, executive director of the Urban Land Institute, urged municipal governments to protect industry from encroachments by surrounding structures that would prevent expansion.

Radio-Controlled Plane Crashes At Fort Monroe

Hampton, Va., April 5 (AP).—A radio-controlled drone plane from the Navy Station at Norfolk crashed on the northern tip of Fort Monroe this afternoon, narrowly missing enlisted men's quarters, the post public information officer said.

Lieut. Col. Walter A. Abrams said the big pilotless plane, customarily used for anti-aircraft gun practice, tore down high tension wires as it crashed, causing a brief shutdown of power on the post.

The officer said he was not advised as to what the plane was doing in the area. It crashed about 20 feet from a barracks area and was demolished, he said.

Childhood Menace Of Cancer Stressed

Report Read

Virginia Unit Cites Strides On Hospital

The Regional Committee of Northern Virginia Health Workers last night reported "some progress" towards the establishment of an area hospital for communicable disease and mental patients.

Fifteen persons representing Arlington, Alexandria, Fairfax, Prince William County and Falls Church last night met in the Falls Church City Hall to hear the progress report.

Plans to set up hospital commissions in individual communities are proceeding, the meeting was told.

Cancer as a childhood killer stands fourth in the age group of 1 to 4, second in the age group of 5-9, and third in the 10-14 group.

Dr. Harold William Dargeon, attending pediatrician at Cancer Memorial Hospital, New York, urged last night earlier diagnosis and more frequent examinations in the disease which he said is recognized as an adult killer, but often overlooked as a childhood menace.

He delivered the Kellogg lecture in the postgraduate course in neoplastic diseases at the George Washington University Medical School, 1335 H st. nw.

Too often, Dr. Dargeon said, symptoms of cancer in children are either regarded as hopeless or not serious. In either case, nothing is done and the wasted time can prove fatal. A symptom of cancer is not a new cancer, he warned his audience of 100, but a cancer which is new only to the examiner.

Cancer will increase in frequency as a cause of death among children, he said, as medical science solves the mysteries of other diseases.

X-radiation and surgery are still the most effective methods of combating cancer in children, he said. But lately chemotherapeutic agents, such as phosphorous and mustard compounds have been used. The results are still inconclusive.

The importance of cancer as a child-health problem lies not in the frequency of its occurrence but in its high case mortality according to Dr. Dargeon, who is also assistant professor of clinical pediatrics at Cornell University.

Peace Begins At Home, Says Club Officer

Old Point Comfort, Va., April 5 (AP).—An officer of the General Federation of Women's Clubs brought together the peace theme and the home in an address here tonight.

"Peace begins on my street. Peace begins on my block," Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren of Whiting, Ind., second vice president of the General Federation, said.

She spoke at the formal opening of the forty-second annual convention of the Virginia Federation. About 500 delegates are attending the three-day session.

The importance of community action by club members will be stressed tomorrow afternoon at a panel discussion on community planning. Speakers are to be Mr. and Mrs. Jess Ogden, of the extension division of the University of Virginia, and Roy W. Godley, of Kroger company.

6th Police Chief in Year Takes Office in Evarts

Evarts, Ky., April 5 (U.P.).—Twenty-two-year-old Bobby McLain took office today as this tough Harlan County mining town's sixth chief of police since last August.

McLain succeeds Isachar Combs, now awaiting a new trial after Judge B. B. Snyder set aside his conviction on a manslaughter charge in the gun-battle slaying of Bryan Middleton last December.

Postlude

All-Chopin Recital by Casadesus

By Paul Hume

Frederic Chopin died 100 years ago next October.

The centenary of his death is being celebrated by as many pianists as possess the necessary technique and feeling for his music. Robert Casadesus, a master of both requisites, devoted his entire recital last night in Constitution Hall to the music of the Polish master.

It is appropriate that such notice should be taken of the greatest genius who ever wrote solely for the piano. With the exception of a few seldom-heard songs, and two concertos, which are largely piano solos with skeletal orchestral accompaniment, Chopin's entire creative life went into the keyboard instrument.

Few pianists today prepare their season's programs without generous doses of Chopin. Yet few bring to his unique style of writing the color and command of technical intricacies, the solidity of musical feeling to interpret him correctly.

It is not easy to say precisely how Robert Casadesus fulfills the demands for at least one kind of perfection in Chopin playing. It is a combination of factors which make him one of the greatest living musicians. His sense of proportion in tone, of color throughout the range of the piano, his command of the art of pedaling—these are essentials. His innate good judgment in phrasing, his patrician appreciation of the need for a continuous line, make his Chopin a rare thing.

Last night's concert included the four Ballades, six mazurkas, six etudes, a Polonaise, nocturne, and the Tarantelle. The Ballades were not the heaven storming affairs they can be, but they assumed their rightful roles as examples of some of the most romantic songs without words in all music. Each mazurka seemed a thing apart, a perfect object. It was not as recital to examine piece by piece. It was the tribute of a supreme artist to one of music's striking figures.

We must praise the excellent voicing and tuning of the piano, a factor not always so favorably noticed.

O'Mahoney Scoffs at Fear Of Depression

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) last night scoffed at depression fears but told the National Retail Furniture Association that "the Russian secret weapon is the hope that a depression will develop in the United States."

Speaking at the Shoreham Hotel, where the association is meeting, the Senator declared "there is no depression just around the corner. We should not mistake a little decrease in the cost of living as the beginning of a slide into recession."

He predicted that foreign aid and defense spending would keep the Nation's economy flourishing for at least another year.

Earlier, John W. Craig, vice president of the Avco Manufacturing Corp. and general manager of the Crosley Division, said in a speech that the 1,500,000 television receivers sold to date represent only 3 per cent saturation of the national market.

The production of 50 million radio sets in the last three years coupled with the advent of television will reduce radio sales this year, Craig predicted.

Craig called for further easing of installment buying restrictions as a boost to sales.

"The action last month broadening the terms was a half-way measure," he said. "It was not sufficient to stimulate buying to the extent to which sound credit is capable. If Regulation W must stay its restrictions must be eased to 10 per cent down and 24 months to pay."

Citizens Back Bill to Boost Pension Rates

The Metropolis View Citizens Association last night indorsed a bill now in Congress which would increase monthly pensions to widows of policemen and firemen from $60 to $125 and to orphans from $10 to $25.

The 20 members meeting at the Crosby Noyes School, 10th and Franklin st. nw., also voted to support a proposal to add three judges to the Municipal Court and one judge to the Juvenile Court. It also congratulated Senator J. Howard McGrath for his plan to increase the Federal payment to the District.

The group went on record as opposed to a proposed bill to regulate the practice of optometry here. A police representative at the meeting heard complaints that boys were breaking windows in the neighborhood with air rifles.

Meridian Hill Urges Better Race Relations

The Meridian Hill Civic Association last night appointed a committee to work with the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association for the improvement of race relations in Washington.

The move followed a resolution recently adopted by the Connecticut ave. group calling for racial harmony.

Meeting at the Wilson School, 2400 17th st. nw., the Meridian Hill group named a committee to meet with the Connecticut ave. group to foster the joint aim. The members also indorsed Charles H. Houston for District Commissioner.

Columbia Heights Unit Indorses Commissioner

The Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night indorsed the reappointment of Commissioner John Russell Young.

At a meeting in the Columbia Heights Christian Church Hall, 1435 Park rd. nw., the group voted to oppose any long-term loan for the District, proposing instead a larger Federal payment to cover District expenses.

In other resolutions, the group indorsed Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president of the Federation of Womens Clubs, for appointment to the Board of Education, backed the Federation of Citizens Association stand on home rule and indorsed the cleanup campaign.

MacArthur Group Asks More Play Facilities

The MacArthur Blvd. Citizens Association last night asked for additional activities and increased supervision for 7 to 12-year-old children at the Palisades Field House.

Meeting at the field house at Dana and Sherier pl. nw., the group was told by Milo F. Christiansen, superintendent of the D. C. Recreation Department, that plans for a gymnasium at the field house have been approved. He said construction would start in the near future if appropriations were forthcoming.

A NEW TREND IN DRAPERIES

Lately there has been a noticeable change in the type of drapery desired in the modern home. Very few homes use strictly modern angular furniture—or adhere to any one of the traditional styles. The overall feeling is to the style—with a slight blending of other styles. This is especially true of drapery. Padded cornice boards with full drawn drapes are being used more and more. This type of treatment does away with the venetian blind and to a great extent the roller shade. It can be used in modern rooms—using the cornice board at the ceiling or possibly hanging the drape from a traverse track at the ceiling.

Full drawn draperies to hang properly should be lined—also interlined. The interlining really helps in preventing fading. When drawn there should be at least one hundred per cent fullness. This is absolutely necessary if the draperies are to give a pleasing effect. If the space to be covered is ten feet—allow twenty feet of drapery. It is also important to extend the curtain—if possible—beyond the window. In this way, the edge of the window is completely covered when the drape is drawn and also gives more light into the room when the drape is open.

We would enjoy discussing your furniture and decorating problems with you. Drop in to Malcolm Scates.

It's Gaining Favor

The Netherlands Minister, Dirk Stikker, Has Personal Statesmanship Approach

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IN WASHINGTON'S recent rush of statesmen, the less internationally known, though equally interesting personalities, have been somewhat overlooked. Take, for instance, the Netherlands Foreign Minister, a cheerful blond who looks fortyish, actually is 52. An outsider in conventional diplomatic circles, Dirk Stikker has a personal manner of approaching statesmanship problems which is proving agreeably effective. He holds down his present job because, during Holland's wartime occupation, he created and perfected a Labor Foundation, an organization through which both employer and employee discuss, settle arising difficulties before they cause active trouble.

Born in the Netherland's northernmost province, Kroningen, where locals are very rugged indeed, Dirk Stikker first tackled banking; then, in 1935 was appointed director of the famous Heinecken Brewing Co. As a businessman he was most successful.

When the Nazis marched in, he was briefly in a concentration camp, then, after release, worked on his Labor Foundation. He became chairman of the board, while the president of Holland's Trade Unions served as vice chairman. In Holland, trade unions are organized individually and all these separate groups participated in the Labor Foundation in order to stop employer-employee friction. As a result of this experiment, unique in Europe, no important strike occurred in Holland during the war. After the war Mr. Stikker was elected to Parliament, became spokesman on foreign policy for the Freedom and Democracy Party, a small, newly merged political group, progressively angled.

Lange Is Labor Leader

NORWAY'S FOREIGN MINISTER, Halvard M. Lange, is the son of Christian Lange, a famous doctor of philosophy. Though the 48-year-old Foreign Minister is usually called "Doctor," he holds no college degrees. He's a philologist, which explains in part his skillful command of English, and, since youth, has been a prominent member of Norway's Labor Party. In fact he has authored several books dealing with Norway's Labor Party and its special problems.

When Norway was invaded, he plunged into active underground work, was arrested in August, 1940, incarcerated in the Mollergata Prison until June 9, 1941. After his release he plunged again into underground activity, was rearrested in August, 1942, stayed in Mollergata until mid-February, 1943, when he was removed to Sachsenhausen, a German concentration camp.

On March 20 he was transferred to Neuengamme and a month later transferred to Denmark, where he was liberated on May 1. He suffered terribly during imprisonment and his health has been very much impaired.

Sforza Seasoned Diplomat

ITALY'S COUNT SFORZA, who's a "cutie," if there ever was one, is the most seasoned politico of all the dozen. Twenty-nine years ago he was Minister of Foreign Affairs, 30 years ago, Undersecretary of State, 32 years ago Italy's Ambassador in Constantinople, 40 years ago his country's envoy in China. In fact, he started his diplomatic career 53 years ago!

No taker of Mussolini's fascism, he left Rome for Paris in 1928 and when France fell spent further exile years in the United States, teaching for a bit down in Charlottesville, Va. He's a real aristocrat by birth, his family were the big-sho Dukes of Milan when Italy's former royal family, the Savoys, were Dukes of lesser Turin. Known as the most intransigent anti-Fascist, on his return from exile he was given the job of chief purger but his character is so typically Italian, so understanding of human ways, he scarcely purged at all!

With considerable daring, since there is a tough anti-American faction in Italian politics, Count Sforza based his last electoral campaign on the North Atlantic Treaty, fought it through Parliament, where, for the first time in Italian history, the legislators started a filibuster against it. (Italian opposition theory is that the Treaty links them too closely to the United States.)

Answer to Togliatti

THERE ARE a great many entertaining stories about the Foreign Minister, who is a real character in every sense of the word. During the recent parliamentary filibustering against the North Atlantic Treaty, Italian Communist Leader Togliatti published a series of insulting articles which labeled Sforza an unbeliever without any trace of religion who had sold out to the democracies.

Togliatti's remarks made the count sizzle. The minute the exhausting filibuster ended, accompanied by his private secretary, he beelined to a small shop where religious articles were sold. Though the shop was crowded with nuns and such placid people, the count banged preemptorily on the table, demanded a prayerbook. His secretaries couldn't have been more puzzled.

When the clerk hustled the book, Sforza held it up, exclaiming triumphantly, "You see, this will confound Togliatti!" Even more puzzled, the secretaries asked why. The Foreign Minister explained that on a recent visit to Paris he had fallen sick of a sore throat while staying with the Italian Ambassador and had been cured by the care of an exceedingly religious chambermaid." He had promised to send her a present from Rome.

"You see," said the count, with winning logic, "all through the filibuster I kept thinking of that religious chambermaid and what to give her. The moment the filibuster was over, leaving matters of state, I rushed here to buy her a prayerbook. Now, will togliatti dare say I'm an unbeliever?"

Ask Anne About Preserving Violin Ornament

We have an expensive and rarely used violin hanging on the living room wall as an ornament. However, we are anxious to preserve its qualities as a musical instrument. Is any special care beyond dusting required? Would waxing the wood help to preserve it? E. K. G.

A musical instrument expert at the Smithsonian suggested it would be difficult to advise you how to best keep the violin as both an ornament and as a musical instrument. He says that by allowing it to hang exposed to heat and air, the glue will dry out. Also, if the instrument is not played it will deteriorate as a musical instrument.

Regular use seems in some way to preserve the qualities in the wood which contribute to the sound. So, if you wish now or in the future to use it, you should protect it by placing it in its case. Waxing would help to preserve the wood, but if the violin is to be played it should not be waxed for adding anything to the finish might affect the tone.

I think this recipe for "Homontashen" must be the one your reader, E. H. S., must have been thinking of when she asked for directions for making poppy seed strudel. This bread is used for Purim and can be found in the "Recipes for Jewish Housewives" published by a large baking company.

HOMONTASHEN

2¼ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
¾ cup milk
8 tablespoons butter, melted

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Beat egg. Add milk and melted butter. Pour into flour and mix to a soft dough. Knead dough gently ½ minute. Roll out dough. Cut in circles about 6 inches in diameter. Put teaspoonful of poppy seed filling in center of each circle. Draw up the sides and pinch together to form triangle. Place on buttered pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes. Makes 8 to 10.

POPPY SEED FILLING

1 egg yolk
1 1/3 cup sugar

Scald poppy seeds and let stand until seeds sink to bottom of bowl. Pour off water and let poppy seeds drain in a fine strainer until all the water has dripped off. Fold in egg yolk; add sugar and blend well.

I noticed in your column the other day that E. N. B. was inquiring where a kit for framing any size picture at home could be had. I enclose an advertisement of a kit of this type which can be ordered from a paint company located at 164 West Lake St., Chicago 1, Ill.

Bishop-Bracken

By William Klemm—The Washington Post.

YOU'LL be seeing these two former service girls today if you watch the Army Day parade. They are members of one of the few all-girl drum and bugle corps in the country. At the left is Rose Johnson of Wilmot, S. Dak., a former Wac, and at the right, Leila Irvin of Lost Angeles, Calif., a former Spar.

60-Girl Drum and Bugle Corps To March in Army Day Parade

Two pretty girls who marched out of wartime military service into a civilian drum and bugle corps have been visiting Washington this week—and 58 more of them arrive today to take part in the Army Day parade.

Leila Irvin of Los Angeles, Calif., a former Spar, and Rose Johnson of Wilmot, S. Dak., a former Wac, are the advance guard of a musical and advertising corps formed by a large meat-packing firm and thereby the proud possessors of two most unusual jobs. It's all due to the fact that the head of the firm is partial to drum and bugle corps and felt that former service girls were the "forgotten veterans."

"Our boss," says Leila, "first organized the corps shortly before the American Legion convention of 1947. He recruited 60 former Waves, Spars, Wacs and women Marines through Legion Posts, had them trained as a drum and bugle corps to compete in the contest at the New York convention.

"We didn't place in the finals that year, but we did last October at Miami. We were ninth, which was pretty good in view of the fact that we were the only all-girl corps in the contest."

They'll lead the Legion contingents in today's Army Day parade, wear white costumes trimmed in red if the day is warm, blue-gray uniforms if the weather isn't so good.

Leila Irvin, a blonde, blue-eyed alumnus of the University of Southern California, is a long-time member of the corps and has traveled over most of the United States with it. She was a yeoman first class in the Spars, serving at Florida and California stations.

Rose Johnson, who just joined the corps in January, was selected partly because she had played the drums in high school and college bands. During the war she was a lieutenant in the Wacs, serving with the Signal Corps at Bradley Beach, N. J.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Two Years' Courtship, With Wedding Date Approaching, Man Confronts Girl With Stag Rumor About Her Past; Her Parents Flare

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am seeking an impartial opinion and helpful advice concerning a boy-girl situation. Fred has been going with Ann for almost two years, has vowed his love for her innumerable times, and had asked her to marry him this summer, as soon as both will have finished college.

However, he recently told her of a very bad and scandalous remark made about her, so he says, by another boy at the time he (Fred) started going with her. He added, "It isn't true, is it?" He refused to name the boy whose statement he claimed to be quoting.

Ann's parents would like to know who has made such a lying attack upon an unusually fine girl of excellent character, who is very religious, well educated, abides by high standards of behavior and belongs to a highly respected family.

Parents Intend to Nail Defamer

FRED'S excuse for concealing the boy's identity is that he doesn't want to create a commotion by dragging up things said long ago, that he doesn't believe and never has. But Ann's parents feel that inasmuch as he mentioned it to her, he should name the "source," if for no other reason than to clear himself of suspicion that he made up the charge himself.

As matters stand, it appears that Fred is more interested in protecting the scandalmonger than in protecting the good name of a girl whom he professes to love with all his heart. What do you think of him? A. B.

Man's in Emotional Flight From Harness

DEAR A. B.: In all probablity Fred doesn't know what he believes; but in my opinion, he isn't bothered so much about Ann's deportment (or reputation) before he knew her, as he is uncertain whether he wants to get married this summer.

It makes little difference whether he made up the scandalous indictment of her character, or whether he got it from someone else. The fact that he resorts to that excuse for questioning her morals, after two years' courtship, with the wedding date fast approaching, suggests that he may be looking for a way out; and that he is groping, unconsciously, for "reason" to justify his negative attitude.

Also, I may add, a thoroughly good man—good in the sense that he is mentally, morally and emotionally healthy—doesn't think "evil" of the woman he loves, regardless of obsolete blunders she has made, if her behavior with him has been praiseworthy according to his standards. Thus Fred's crass reference to moldy gossip about Ann brings his fitness for marriage into question; for a man is unfit to cherish a wife if he has a tendency to harbor distrust.

Strike at Issue, Not at Camouflage

IN THE EVENT that Ann has loved Fred unreservedly—to a degree that makes him wonder "Was she always so free?"—then his misdoubts, if based on their association, would mean that he has never loved her, but rather used sentiment to gild selfish sex drive, and unconsciously held her guilty of the same.

As for what Ann's parents should do, they should take their cue from her. If she has turned to them in sick dismay, asking how to cope with slander, or calling on them to help clear her name, they are entitled to take some action. But if Ann doesn't want them to say or do anything, they ought to respect her wishes, hard though it may be to "contain" themselves.

There is always a chance that parents don't know the whole truth about their children's behavior after college-age; and it could be mighty embarrassing for Ann if her parents tried to prove her more "pure" than she is. With Ann's permission, they might call in Fred, not to labor the gossip angle, but to face with him the deep implications of his attitude, and to help him decide whether they ought to marry, in view of it. M. H.

Do You Talk To Your Baby? You Should

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is widely known that babies do not develop as well physically or mentally when they lack mothering.

Even in institutions where there are no mothers, the attendants make a point of spending some time each day cuddling and loving the little charges. Otherwise, they lie like lumps, their nutritional needs supplied but lacking that spark supplied by mother-love.

Mrs. M. J. A. wishes she might impress upon mothers the necessity to talk to their babies. "I began talking to my baby when he was new in the hospital," she writes, "then the very first time I took her to the doctor and he poked a tongue depresser in her mouth, I held her hands and said reassuringly, 'It's all right honey.' And she didnt cry.

"Later when she began to eat I'd tell her to chew and show her how and to this day she is a very careful chewer." These are but two examples but the point is that many parents neglect to talk to their babies and underestimate their intelligence.

There are mothers who write to ask me why their children do not talk. In their explanations they admit that they do not talk much themselves, they are alone in the house, or they are busy. This is why the child does not respond readily to demands to talk.

When my own babies were little I used to say each night as I closed the bedroom door, "Go to sleep, darling." I felt that this constant repetition, along with the feeling of sleepiness would soon become meaningful to them.

We read jingles to children when we know they are meaningless, but the child enjoys the rhythm, the repetition of sounds, the different sounds themselves. So it is with talking. We say the same thing in the same way in a given situation and soon the child understands.

Housekeeping Hints

To make a nutritious and a delicious luncheon salad, quarter a small tomato for each person to be served, but do not cut the tomato quite through at the bottom. Place on a bed of shredded salad greens and fill the tomato with a generous serving of creamed cottage cheese; if chives are available they may be finely diced and used as a garnish for the cheese. Serve the salad with a well-seasoned French dressing and hot rolls.

Bread and cake should never be kept in the same box. Air the containers once a week, preferably in the sun.

On the Town

Most of the time, an easy informality reigns in the Sazerac Room (Old New Orleans). Tapers toss a soft, flickering light, revealing musket-hung, oak-paneled walls. Diners cha across Red checkered tablecloths.

For dancers there's music by Bob Simpson and his band. Between sets, Les Williams plays a deft, modulated piano and sings slow, familiar songs. White-jacketed waiters weave in and out among the tables.

Periodically, however, comes a welcomed interruption to this cozy scene—the arrival of dark-tressed, vivacious Rita Dimitriou, featured singer at the Sazerac Room for more than a year. Out go the candles, the chatter dies out, and Rita takes over.

For the following few minutes, patrons are treated to an agreeable education in languages. The versatile diseuses first sings in French, then in Italian, next in Spanish, after that in her native tongue—Greek.

Rita, known not so long ago as the "First Lady of the Athens Stage," puts this flurry of foreign tongs across so well you might be listening to her in a Parisian cafe, or its equivalent in Italy, Spain, Greece.

"Weep no more . . ." begins Billie Holiday, the words sung softly, clearly, with restraint. Weep no more, and the packed Club Bali listens, concentration in every face. Maybe it's only a great American song stylist at work, you think—and then, surveying the room—you think again. Maybe it's art.

Over the room the voice rolls, dominating it, insistent, searching, hypnotic. The audience seems spellbound. A band underplays the voice, but you don't hear it, so subtle is the magic.

Then she picks it up and you know the song is ending: "I'm going to weep no more until somebody weeps for me." The voice and music cease. The spell is broken. You realize a woman is spotlighted in the center of the room, a woman you've been watching without seeing. Billie Holiday.

Efforts to Free Body of Bridge Victim Delayed

Hinton, W. Va., April 5 (AP).—The body of Paul Sanders, 39-year-old Radford, Va., rigger, will remain in the mud of the Bluestone Reservoir until wreckage of the Bluestone bridge span can be removed.

The 278-foot center span of the new highway bridge collapsed last Thursday, hurling Sanders and four other men to their deaths.

Officials explained that any effort to recover Sanders' body, tightly wedged among boulders and a stock of 4-by-6-inch ties might bring down the entire span, which is dangling by a few steel beams from the remainder of the bridge.

Virginia Cities Study Plea for Phone Rate Rise

Richmond, Va., April 5 (AP).—The League of Municipalities studied today a request of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia for an increase in service rates.

Harold Baumes, executive secretary, said he had asked Leslie T. Fox, Mayor of Portsmouth and league president, whether he desired to establish a new utilities committee to oppose the rate increase request. The league opposed a rate boost granted to C&P last year.

In its petition the company asked for increases to give $2,300,000 additional in net earnings annually. The requested rise would mean boosts of 75 cents in most individual subscription rates and of $1.50 in the individual flat business rate.

Cumberland Clubhouse Is Destroyed by Fire

Cumberland, Md., April 5 (AP).—The clubhouse of the Cumberland Country Club was destroyed by fire early today.

The fire was discovered shortly after 1 a. m. by three Cumberland men—all fire insurance adjustors—who were returning from Hagerstown.

Two smaller buildings, and caddy and locker houses, were damaged. A. W. Keight, vice president of the club, said the clubhouse had just been remodeled at a cost of about $60,000. Cause of the fire was not determined early today.

Maryland 18-Year-Olds Warned to Register

Baltimore, April 5 (AP).—Maryland's Selective Service director warned 18-year-olds today that they still are required to register with their local boards.

This is despite the fact that no further inductions under the Selective Service Act of 1948 are in prospect, at least for the time being. The act requires young men to register with their local boards within 15 days after they celebrate their eighteenth birthday.

READ CAREFULLY!
Saturday morning April 9th, at 9 a. m. sharp I want to talk with 35 men who are ambitious in securing a position that will give them steady employment the year around.
In other words, there are no layoff periods and consistent income is the income that really counts. It doesn't matter what your past employment has been, all we ask is that you be willing to study and learn as we teach you our work. It will also be necessary that you be willing to get along on $75 to $80 per week for the first 4 to 6 weeks while learning our work. You must also be able to give the names of 3 people who will vouch for your honesty and integrity. We prefer men who are married or men who have some source of responsibility. We would also like to talk to a few men who are mechanically inclined and who know a good thing when they see it. Therefore, if you are honest and of good character and a willing worker and neat in appearance, come and talk with us.

Harvey Pulls Financial Rabbits Out of Hat

A Chicago man named Harvey McDonald has been charged with the murder of his "week-end wife," who was the mother of two of his children.

Harvey's other wife bore him six children—making a total of two wives and eight children.

Many a man has had eight children, and some have even had two wives. But I think Harvey is unique, in that he managed all this on a salary of $38 per week.

He owes it to an incredulous Nation to explain how.

HOW THE YOUNGER HALF LIVES

I hate to publicize my competitors, but inasmuch as they're so young the union won't let them take away my job yet, I'll chance it.

I'm referring to the boys and girls who put out school and commun... p p rs in th s area. A good example might be the kids at Franconia, Va., School No. 5 and their "Chatterbox."

A recent issue contains a bit of dialogue between a teacher and a pupil named (as always) Johnny. Teacher says: "You were supposed to write two pages about milk, but I see you've written only one." Johnny's reply is: "I know—but I was writing about condensed milk."

The "Chatterbox" is also pretty hep on riddles. "Why is the Statue of Liberty's hand 11 inches long?" brings the quick reply, "Because if it were 12 inches long it would be a foot."

Similarly: "Why did the moron throw the alarm clock out of the window?" "He wanted to see the time fly."

PENNY WISE

A friend of mine named Pete is a young veteran who works part time and attends classes at George Washington University.

The Veterans Administration, under the existing law, gives him a "subsistence" award" to bring his income up to the level of $210 per month.

When he enrolled at GW, an investigator found that Pete had earned $844.[illegible] during a 2-month period. He divided that by 2, subtracted from $210, and decreed that Pete was to receive $37.51 per month from the Government.

After a while, Pete changed the number of credit-hours he was attending at GW, and when the Veterans Administration was notified, another investigator reviewed the young man's case. In the due course of events, Pete was notified that his subsistence award was being cut from $37.51 per month to $37.50 per month.

The veteran shrugged it off, and went about his business. A month later, there was another minor adjustment in his school hours, and once again the Veterans Administration reviewed the case.

You'll be glad to know that Pete's subsistence award has now been revised again. He has all the official notification forms to prove that from now on he'll get $37.51, instead of $37.50 per month.

Pete is satisfied to let it go at that. But I think that so long as they're being so all-fired meticulous about this thing, he ought to make an issue of the half-cent they've been cheating him out of each month, even at the higher figure.

GIVE AWAYS

IT'S ABOUT TIME

It's comforting to note that auto prices, which moved forward at such high speeds since the war, are also equipped with a reverse gear this season.

PROGRESS

For a dozen years I tried (always unsuccessfully) to get a decent shave with my electric razor.

When the motor finally gasped its last the other day, I bought one of the new models—the kind with two shearing heads. I find it a great improvement.

It used to take me 8 minutes to fail to remove my whiskers; now I can fail to remove them in 4 minutes.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Capitol Showdown on Pensions

By Drew Pearson

A handful of World War II Congressmen who dared to oppose Representative Rankin's multibillion-dollar pension scheme had a showdown the other day with Perry Brown, national commander of the American Legion. The tight-lipped Texan not only promised to hold no grudges, but agreed with the anti-pension voting stand of the war veterans in Congress.

Brown

This was a backhanded slap at the Legion's crusty chief lobbyist retired Brig. Gen. John Thomas Taylor, who had threatened to stir up local Legion posts against the young Congressmen.

Because of his threats, Congressman Olin "Tiger" Teague of Texas wired the American Legion commander and brought him up to Capitol Hill. While Brown waited in the House restaurant, Teague herded other young Congressmen down to see him. Those joining the huddle included Congressmen Glenn Davis of Wisconsin, Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts, Jim Nolan of Indiana, Harold Patten of Arizona and George Smathers of Florida.

All had voted against fireball John Rankin's costly pension plan—known as "Rankin's revenge"—because he sponsored it more to embarrass the Administration than to help the veterans.

Speaking privately to the Congressmen, Commander Brown gave his unofficial views on veterans pensions. He couldn't speak for the record, he explained, because he couldn't afford to antagonize Rankin, who happens to be chairman of the House Veterans Committee and who is a wildcat-by-the-tail when riled.

However, Brown agreed privately that Rankin's motives were 90 per cent political and that his bill went too far.

Brown also promised that the Legion would not campaign against the Congressmen who opposed Rankin—despite Taylor's threats. Brown added, however, that he would not discipline Taylor, who has served the Legion faithfully for two decades and is scheduled to retire next year.

Truman Won't Go

President Truman really let a friend down when he canceled his scheduled speech at the testimonial dinner for Chaim Weizmann, first President of the new state of Israel.

The man who originally arranged for Truman's appearance at the dinner in New York was Col. Louis Johnson, forthright new Secretary of National Defense. Several months ago Johnson dropped in at the White House and asked:

"Mr. President, do you remember when things were toughest during the campaign and we couldn't raise a cent? And do you remember who the first man was to stand up and say, 'I pledge $100,000 to reelect President Truman'? Well, it was Abe Feinberg."

"Oh, yes, I remember Abe," said the President. "He certainly did come through for us."

The President then asked what would make him happy.

"Well, Mr. President," said Johnson, "the thing you could do to make Abe Feinberg happy would be to accept that invitation to speak for Chaim Weizmann in New York. You'd be honoring two great men if you did, Weizmann and Abe."

"All right, Louie," said the President, "I'll do it. You call up Abe and tell him it's O. K."

Johnson didn't call Feinberg, but presidential secretary Matt Connolly did. Johnson was right. Feinberg was about the happiest man in the United States—until suddenly Truman changed his mind, decided he couldn't go to New York to attend the dinner.

Note—Despite heavy contributions from Jewish friends, the President has indicated to intimates that the Jews let him down in the November campaign. He points out that they failed to carry New York.

Timely Prediction

This column has sometimes knocked the diplomats, but here's something it's a pleasure to report. It's about an American diplomat who was not asleep at the switch.

His name is James Hugh Keeley, United States minister to Syria, where a revolution has just overthrown the government in power. This revolt came as a complete surprise to almost every country but the United States—thanks to Mr. Keeley.

As early as nine months ago Keeley cabled the State Department predicting revolt in Syria. He followed this up with more reports in which he did everything but call the day for the revolt. He even named the leader of the rebels—Brig. Hosney el Zaim, the French-trained army leader.

Keeley now reports that the shooting is over, that there is nothing for the United States to worry about because the rebels are pro-American. Reasons for the revolt, he says, is that Hosney el Zaim got disgusted with corruption in the old Syrian government and took things into his own hands, to give the younger men in Syria a chance at running things.
